Barden, City to negotiate cable TV contract Council votes unanimously on Mayor Oakley's recommendation

Barden Cablevision, which constructed Inkster's impressive cable TV system, will have an opportunity to expand into neighboring Romulus and Van Buren Township. Romulus City Council and the Van Buren Township Board of Supervisors last Tuesday voted to enter into negotiations with Don Barden, President of Cablevision to see if the parties can come to an agreement on the franchise.

Romulus and Van Buren had earlier awarded their respective community's franchises to Comcast of Philadelphia, however, that company decided to back out of the agreement, arguing that the communities had placed too many obstacles upon it.

"I was really impressed with Barden's presentation and his sincerity to get the job done," said Patricia Cullin, Van Buren Township supervisor. "I think this thing has been delayed long enough, and we should proceed immediately.

"And, from what I hear and see at what Mr. Barden has done in Inkster, I'm sure that he will be able to offer our citizens an equally excellent system."

At Tuesday night's Romulus City Council meeting, Mayor William Oakley asked for and received unanimous approval to enter into negotiations with Barden.

"On behalf of myself and the other members of the cable TV committee, I would like to recommend that we be authorized to negotiate with Barden Cablevision for the purpose of finalizing an ordinance and franchise agreement for the establishment of Cable TV service in Romulus.

"It is our intention to have an ordinance and franchise agreement which is as close as possible to the one already adopted with the previous company.

"It might be that we will have to call upon Dr. Thomas Kuth for his advice on technical matters that might arise in the negotiations," Mayor Oakley's statement said.

Dr. Kuth is a member of a cable TV consulting firm out of Ann Arbor which helped evaluate the bids and proposals submitted to the city for consideration.

Councilman Barry Baumann later said that he had some concerns about the pending negotiations with Barden.

"I hope that it all works out," Baumann said. "But, I feel we can't stray from the original proposal because that could cause some problems. If we deviate from the adopted ordinance we could be opening ourselves to a lawsuit by the other company, (Comcast)."

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry replied that "anytime you walk out on an agreement, you have no agreement. You also have no right to contest any future action between the other parties when the company leaves you high and dry."

Handicapped make their point

It didn't take long for two handicapped persons to make their point with the Belleville City Council Monday night.

The two appeared before Council to push for an ordinance that would make city facilities more accessible to the handicapped. Arriving late at the meeting, the two said they couldn't reach the electrical button at the side of the City Hall to secure help. The button was out of reach because they were in wheelchairs.

A group of handicapped persons has united and filed a lawsuit to force cities to construct facilities that don't become obstacle courses for the handicapped and, because of the pending lawsuit.

Otto named to Commission

Belleville City Council Monday night named John Otto to the Planning Commission, replacing Jack Loria on the board. Loria had expressed a desire to resign from the commission.

McKelvey gets state post

Van Buren resident Gerald E. McKelvey was appointed by Gov. William Milliken to serve on the Michigan Board of Chiropractic, succeeding James Renfrew of Lake Orion.

McKelvey's term will expire Dec. 31, 1985.

In making the appointment, the Governor noted: "I have every confidence that you will derive personal satisfaction from this important position and that the State of Michigan will benefit from your background and experience."

Au Sable trip

The American Association of Retired Persons is planning a trip to the Au Sable on August 10 and all persons, 60 and over, are invited to come along.

The one-day affair will cost participants $40 and will include the bus fare and food. For further information contact Addy Taylor at 721-9042.

Real pros

The Detroit Lions will be in the area on Saturday to discuss, what else, football! And they will also help push some of Red Holman's cars. Leading the assault to get the economy and the cars moving is Lions' Gary Cobb, who is pictured above with Holman, whose dealership at Ford Rd. and Wayne Rd. will be filled with Lion fans and Lions, including Cobb, Dexter Bussey, Amos Fowler and Ken Fantetti this week. The Lions and Holman are sponsoring a free football clinic and young gridders must sign up on Thurs., July 22 between 5 to 9 p.m. The clinic will be staged on Saturday, July 24 at 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. in cooperation with Westland John Glenn High School. It is also opened to all local high school students, ages 14 to 17, however, parental approval is required. There is a 200 student limit and if you need further information, telephone Red Holman at 721-1144.

Area resident guilty of arson

An Inkster man was convicted on one count of burning real property and faces sentencing July 19 before Circuit Judge Erwin Burdick.

The man, Richard Cook, was arrested and charged in connection with the March 16, 1981 blaze at the Dick C's Bar, located at 27332 Michigan Avenue.

The Inkster Fire Department responded to the early morning fire and, with the aid of the Dearborn Heights Firefighters fought the blaze for four hours in 28 degree temperatures. The firefighters were able to keep the fire confined to one building.

After an investigation by local and state police, Cook was arrested for the arson of the building and found guilty in Wayne County Circuit Court.

Van Buren Is ready to hire police chief

Leonard Keller says he is very "impressed by the police officers in Van Buren", a police department he will soon command.

Keller, 33, selected by the township board as its first full-time police chief, said on Tuesday by telephone from Hinckley, Ohio that "there is tremendous potential and talent in the department."

"I met with about nine officers," Keller said, "and I was impressed by the officers, and I believe there is an abundance of untapped potential in these men. I really believe we can build a professional law enforcement agency together."

Keller, who presently is sergeant as the police chief of a rustic community of 6,000 residents in Hinckley, Ohio, was selected from a field of more than 150 applicants to handle the job of Van Buren's top law enforcement officer.

LEONARD KELLER.

Although he is close in accepting the $25,500 position, there are some "minor details that have to be worked out."

"The contract looks good," Keller explained, "and I see no real obstacles except I need to find a home for my family. Also, those finer contract details must be worked out by the Van Buren attorney and also reviewed by my attorney, then approved by the board."

But Keller stressed that he sees no real problems in finalizing the contract.

Keller, a graduate of the FBI Academy, has been the police chief in Hinckley for the past four years. He came highly recommended and survived written and verbal tests organized by Bartell & Bartell Associates, a law enforcement consulting firm which conducted all the screening of candidates.

'Residency ordinance' stirs heated council controversy

Jobs are scarce — few will deny that.

And cities are feeling the economic crunch and trying to save money wherever and whenever they can. Most are also trying to hire employees at a cost-savings to the city, so when Mayor William Oakley recommended to City Council last week that he wanted its approval to hire a contractual employee for the finance department, it appeared to be a bargain.

It also stirred up a hornets nest. Cities usually don't have to pay contract employees fringes such as hospitalization. The worker usually forfeits benefits.

However, at least one resident stated in writing that he wanted the position and questioned Council why it is violating the City Charter which has a residency rule for employment.

The resident also criticized the city for not advertising the available position.

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry agreed.

"As long as we have qualified people in Romulus for city jobs, I feel we should hire those people," Raspberry said. "I can't understand how we can ignore these people and our own citizens."

Mayor Oakley replied that the candidate for the job had been tutored by city employees and "has the qualifications that we need. If we had not advertised for the position, then how did the resident hear about the job?"

Raspberry stood his grounds that the charter, via an ordinance, made it clear that when a position is open it should be filled by a resident whenever possible. "These are the people who pay the taxes to keep this city running."

Mobile home law erupts in debate

Mobile homes meeting local ordinance specifications will now be allowed on any land in Canton Township following a precedent setting decision by the Township Board of Trustees Tuesday evening.

The decision came after lengthy debate and study of the issue and, according to Township Supervisor James Poole, was prompted by a recent supreme court decision which determined that mobile units cannot be relegated to mobile home

"Because the charter and common sense dictates," Raspberry added, "I feel that this appointment should be denied."

However, Raspberry failed to get the support of his colleagues. Voting to deny the appointment were councilman John Lawkowitz and Mayor Pro Tem Mary Ann Banks, while Junior Block, Barry Baumann, Peter Bergeron and Alan Lambert supported the mayor's recommendation.

parks or restricted altogether from local subdivisions and individual lots as was the case in many areas.

"You often have to act contrary to your own desires and ideas in government," Padgett said, "and this is one of those times. This is the classic dilemma, we can't outlaw so we must regulate."

Poole explained that the entire issue was generated by the supreme court decision and that the board would be in serious danger if the members chose to ignore the fact of law.

Price says she's 'right for 37th district'

Betty "Jo" Price, who has served in the United States Navy and is a Wayne County Sheriff's Deputy, feels she is the right person for the State Representative's position in the 37th District.

The district, newly-aligned, is presently served by incumbent Edward Malahak who also faces serious challenges from Romulus attorney Rober Cadaret and Canton City Planner James Kosteva.

"I see myself as the frontrunner," said Ms. Price, a Democrat. "And one of the reasons why I see myself in that role is because I have been serving the people and residents of this area for over a quarter of a century.

"As a Wayne County Sheriff's deputy, I used to find their children and bring them home; pick up bodies after accidents, chase criminals and arrest them and rush victims to the hospitals.

"There are only a few things I have not done for this area and I want to continue to work for everyone in Lansing next year as their state rep," Ms. Price added.

15th District race

Congressional candidate is ready to outline his goals

An "Evening with Glen Kassel", the Republican candidate for the U.S. Congress from the 15th District will be held beginning at 7 p.m., Thurs., Aug. 5 at the St. Simon & Jude Hall.

Kassel, who is seeking to unseat William Ford, the veteran incumbent from Congress, said he will outline his plan "to give employment to all citizens of Michigan who Price said that one of the key issues that most elected officials pay lip service to is "jobs". "They all have promised to get this economy moving and look at what the Republican Administration has done—it's a mess—and I am going to do something about it.

"I believe our tax dollars are being wasted and from those dollars we can create jobs," she said.

The 37th District includes Romulus, Wayne, Van Buren, Belleville, and parts of Canton Township.

Ms. Price says that this is the first time she has run for political office, but "that's no handicap because the people I meet on a one-and-one basis, while I'm pounding the streets and knocking on the doors, know that I am sincere. Old politicians know how to wrangle themselves out of a tight hole. I'm ready to face them straight forward with honest answers."

Ms. Price's credentials include: serving in the U.S. Navy, and reaching the rank of Lieutenant; employed as a head nurse at Wayne County General Hospital; employed by the Wayne County Medical Examiner.

She has also been employed as a Wayne County Sheriff, assigned to the airport, Circuit Court, Headquarters, Detective-Patrol and Investigation, Instructor for the Wayne County Sheriff's Police Training Academy and physical education instructor at Madonna College.

She held the titles of Chairman Board of Trustees and Executive Board of Wayne County Sheriff's Local 502.

Ms. Leduc eyes commissioner's job

Wayne County government and its programs must be revitalized and programs re-evaluated says Margaret Leduc, a Romulus resident who is seeking to become the Wayne County Commissioner from the 11th District.

Ms. Leduc feels that she is one of the leading candidates for the job. The area includes residents from Canton Township, Wayne, Romulus, Belleville, Van Buren, Sumpter, Huron, Flat Rock and Rockwood. There are a total of nine Democrats seeking the commissioner's job in the district and only one Republican.

The 11th district, according to Ms. Leduc, has a wide variance of needs and problems from needing new roads, sewers and drains to questioning the feasibility of sludge plants, and airport expansion. These are only a few of the issues of the district that the new commissioner will have to address.

Ms. Leduc has lived in Wayne County all of her life and has been in Romulus for the past 10 years. She worked actively on the board as founder and chairman of Belleville-Romulus Fish Organization. She has worked actively in St. Aloysius Church on various community projects, and extensively on the St. Aloysius Festival which is comparable to Belleville's Strawberry Festival.

She worked in the community to obtain bus service from SEMTA. This was done before her completion of her masters degree in Community Organization from the School of Social Work at the University of Michigan.

Ms. Leduc believes that the budget is one of the most important issues that should be addressed. She calls for an independent audit and an assessment of the needs of the county to determine revenues available and type of services to provide. "County services were established to meet the needs of the people," said Ms. Leduc who believes it is about time to evaluate these programs and policies to determine if they should be kept, revitalized, or eliminated.

On the financial side, revenues want to work" at this time.

St. Simon & Jude is located at 32500 Palmer Road, west of Merri-man in Westland.

"I feel my ideas are not unique," Kassel stated. "I only want the chance to inform Congress what we working people feel. I intend to take 'Action — Not Slogans' into Congress when I am elected."

Kassel feels that Michigan's economy can be turned around by diversity and that "we should no longer place all of our eggs in one basket."

County Commissioner's race

Mack to hold rally

A "hot dogs and beer" picnic and rally in support of Milton Mack, candidate for county commissioner in the 11th District, will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Sat., July 24, at 37655 Hillcrest Drive in Wayne (off of Newburgh, 1/2 mile north of Michigan Ave.).

Tickets to the fund raiser are $10 per person, or $15 per couple, and can be purchased on the day of the event, or by calling Bob Beeny at 326-7779 or Bev Campbell at 729-6499.

Mack, mayor pro-tem of the City of Wayne and Detroit attorney, is seeking election in the newly-formed 11th District with a promise to continue working for county reform under terms of the new charter.

Committed to reform of county government by acting as attorney for the Wayne County Charter Commission in lawsuits against the Wayne County Road Commission, Mack said he'll continue to fight for better government.

The legal action challenges the 6-year executive contract given the top 73 highly-paid employees of the Road Commission, and charges the Road

Commission with circumventing the expressed will of the people who approved the new charter.

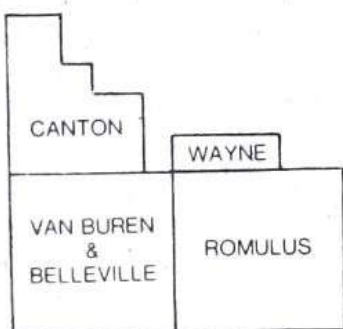

Saturday's rally will bring together people from throughout the

11th County Commissioner District, which includes Wayne, Romulus, New Boston, Canton Township, Huron Township, Van Buren Township, Belleville, Sumpter

Township, Flat Rock and Rockwood.

All supporters of the candidacy of Milt Mack are invited to take part in this old-fashioned back yard picnic and rally.

Belleville loses a friend

CLARENCE HEININGER

Clarence H. Heininger, former Mayor of Belleville, who had devoted most of his adult life to serving the people of the city and the area passed away last week.

Mr. Heininger died on July 17 at Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti. He was 88.

"Mr. Heininger was a devoted public servant," said Belleville Mayor Justin Emerson, "who had served this community and our citizens for many years. He was respected by all of us and we'll truly miss him."

Mr. Heininger was one of 16 children born to John and Fredricka (Roth) Heininger. He was born in Saline, Michigan in 1893. He was a local auto dealer for more than 44 years and served on the Belleville City Council for more than 20 years before being elected as its mayor in 1952.

Mr. Heininger was a lifetime member of the Eastern Star, the I.O.O.F. Lodge and the Masonic Lodge in Belleville.

He is survived by his wife, Iren (Porter) Heininger and sons, Reinard P. of Belleville and Milford G. of Toledo, Ohio. He is also survived by two grandchildren, Jay and Kay Heininger of Toledo. Fifteen brothers and sisters preceded him in death.

Funeral services were held at 11 a.m., July 21 at the First United Methodist Church in Belleville with the Rev. J. E. Arthur officiating.

Interment will be at Hillside Cemetery.

Donations may be made to the First United Methodist Church.

Recall group answers letter

An open letter to Mary Lou Carey, Huron Township Clerk:

Dear Ms. Carey, Since you feel "qualified" to tell the voters of Van Buren Township how to vote, perhaps you would like some accurate information to assist you in this endeavor.

It's true, you did survive a recall attempt in your township. Perhaps the reason you survived is because you do a good job as Clerk in Huron Township. I don't know because I follow the political scene in Huron Township about as much as you apparently follow the political scene in Van Buren Township. This is readily apparent because that statement is probably the only true fact in your guest editorial that appeared in last week's paper. The other true fact is your obvious friendship with Doreen Craven and Pat Cullin.

You stated the voters are "being used by a small group of discontented persons who are the supporters of the losers in the last township election." The losers include Joe Didia, Marlene Manier and Jerry Maton who lost their seats on the Board, George Roberts, Republican candidate for Supervisor. The only truth to your statement is in the fact that someone connected with the recall effort may have supported each of these people in that election. Of course your statement is so general in nature it may sound good, but it doesn't say anything.

You proceed to accuse the "recall perpetrators" of "mudslinging" in the campaign. Lady, when you make accusations like that it would be nice if you could offer some proof, which of course you fail to do because you have none. On the other hand, it is possible that what you are "hearing" could be true, whatever it is. You might also like to explain why someone closely tied to the present administration in the township has been tearing down the recall signs. (A complaint was filed with the State Police on Friday, July 16, on this matter by myself after he was caught in the act the prior day.) Are they running that scared as to try to deny us the right to put up our posters, even after I paid the required deposit and was given a permit to do so by the Township in compliance with the Township Ordinance covering the display of political signs?

You mention that the people being recalled "made a mistake or two along the way." Boy, have they ever! One after another! The commander incident wasn't the only mistake they made but it sure did turn out to be the straw that broke the camel's back. In addition to it and the other reasons stated in the recall petition, you did read those, didn't you?, are general mismanagement, giving themselves an 8% plus pay raise when it was not available, generally acting like idiots at the township board meetings refusing to provide answers to citizens questions at the board meetings, attempting to embarrass anyone who dared ask a question on a subject they didn't like to discuss, and recently having a second member of the police department arrested for also having two driver licenses as well as several aliases and a fraudulent voter registration. (This arrest was reported in the Ypsilanti Press) I could go on and on such as the $1,000,000 payroll and fringe benefit cost in the township, the use of 34,000 gallons of gasoline so everyone can use a township car and go wherever and whenever they want, also the way they have "treated" several employees and "mistreated" others, the general discontent among the employees at the township, the way they have misled, and mistreated the senior citizens at the hall, misuse of water department funds, budgetary abuses, sloppy accounting with the intent to cover up waste and other abuses, overpayments to certain professional advisors, etc., etc., etc.

You indicate that final solutions to problems take time, money, thought and study. These people have had a great deal of all of these things to work with. They have enjoyed the time, wasted the money, thought about feathering their own nests, and ignored the studies. One committee after another has submitted their studies and recommendations, only to have them "received and filed." Whatever happened to all the recommendations made by the Landfill Committee? Nothing! Maybe that is why all but two members of that committee have resigned recently. Maybe that is why there have been so many resignations from committees in general. Nobody likes to expend their labors and effort only to have their suggestions and recommendations ignored without so much as discussion and consideration.

I'm glad you feel all the problems in Van Buren Township have been "solved in the correct way" as you so aptly state. You should be so lucky to live here. Then you could enjoy the fine life we do with the odors and flies from the dump, the embarrassment of the hiring practices associated with our police department which are approved by the board majority, the nicknames associated with our receiving Detroit's sludge at the dump, our lack of sewer lines in many parts of the township, poor drainage in others, receiving toxic chemicals in the dump, poor roads, outrageous assessments on some homes to compensate for inadequate assessments on others, a beautiful park which many citizens refuse to use because of the stories they hear about what goes on in it and why the police don't patrol in the park, etc., etc., etc. Perhaps you should spend less time talking to Pat and Doreen and more time talking to the citizens of Van Buren.

I think it is wonderful that Doreen could take the time, at taxpayer's expense, and become so well educated, at taxpayer's expense, so she could receive a nice certificate of accommodation from Rep. Mahalak and others, at taxpayer's expense. I'm certain she now has learned to fill out the required forms very well and do other clerical tasks associated with her office. Too bad they didn't teach her how to vote on matters before the board, such as the creation of a position within the police department, specifically that of police commander and selection of an appointee to that position, even after an arrest record is questioned prior to the vote. It is obvious, as you suggest, she and Pat both have our "best interest at heart."

If it appears, Ms. Carey, that I feel you haven't shown a good deal of knowledge thus far in your editorial, let me say that when you started telling the voters what would happen should the recall succeed, and what the recall is going to cost that it really became apparent you didn't know anything. It really made me question your own qualifications as a "Certified Municipality Clerk." Perhaps you should go back for a re-resher course? I'm not going to take the space in this letter to fully explain the procedure to you, but I will mention the most blatant omission you made. That is the fact that even if it occurs that the Governor would have to make some appointments, which rarely happens, those persons appointed by the Governor would only serve until the voters can elect new officials through another election. That period of time will be very short and the voters will still determine their own destiny through the democratic process. Pretty important point to leave out, don't you think?

You mention it costs $10,000 to conduct a special election. I could argue your estimates with you but I won't. The figure is meaningless in the case of the Van Buren Recall. You see, and I'm sure you realized this but overlooked it because $10,000 sounded more impressive. Van Buren is not conducting a special election just for the purpose of voting the recall. The recall election is being conducted along with the regularly scheduled Primary Election, August 10, 1982. This means the cost to the taxpayers will be just a small portion of the figure you so boldly suggest. The same will be true of the second election, to elect new officials when the recall succeeds. That second election will undoubtedly be held along with the regular election November 2, 1982, again saving the taxpayers. This means that both elections will cost less than is probably being wasted in free gasoline alone in a year's time, to say nothing about the other forms of waste going on. All in all, it doesn't look like a bad deal, does it?

Finally, you mention something about the silent majority and the vocal minority. Let me assure you, Ms. Carey, that whatever happens with regard to this recall, it will be the majority of the voters going to the polls August 10, 1982, that will decide the fate of Van Buren Township. Not some outsider sticking her nose into other peoples business without so much as adequate facts to back up her statements, most of which were nothing but innuendo to begin with. Let me remind you that over 2,000 people signed one or more of the recall petitions and that nearly 1,700 signatures were certified by the county, when only 1,096 were required to bring about the recall election. Does this sound like merely a vocal minority? As chairman of the Van Buren Recall Committee, I know how much effort and how many people worked on the petition drive. I have had occasion to talk to thousands of people in our township and I know how they feel about their present government. I know of the embarrassment they feel over how Pat Cullin, Doreen Craven, Tom Welty, Tim Toohey, and Chester Wojciech have conducted the affairs of our township. I urge every voter to go to the polls on August 10, 1982, and express their concern over the future of our township. I know that on August 10, an overwhelming majority of voters will vote "YES" on each of the five to recall them all.

After the recall of these five succeeds, I'm certain your apology for butting in will be accepted by the voters of Van Buren Township. I believe they are big enough to excuse the mistakes of outsiders. The mistakes of the "insiders" are much harder to forgive.

RON YURCHAK
Chairman
Van Buren Recall Committee

Citizens can't afford it

Why higher taxes now?

Out of balance and off the target are two phrases that can often be applied to recent state initiatives.

Why do we have tax increases at a time when people can least afford it? Why are local governments shut out of such important decision-making areas as foster care units, landfills and mobile home regulation? Out of balance and off the target.

Throughout the country during the recent past we have heard the cries of less government and less taxes. Some states like California and Massachusetts have taken dramatic steps to get that desire implemented.

In Michigan, voters have been reluctant to take such dramatic arbitrary actions in the hope that the message for better government and equitable taxes would be heard. Why are Michigan representatives still off the target and not listening?

Let's get on those targets. Let's get down to cutting waste, fraud and unnecessary bureaucracy. Let's make taxes more fair. Part by part the system must be analyzed. Those parts which serve to benefit the government more than the public should be removed or modified. Raising taxes should have been the Governors last option not his first.

When the State adopted the recent laws regarding foster care units, landfills and mobile homes, it was closer to the target but still out of balance. Local zoning ordinances that are totally pre-empted and neighborhoods that are burdened with the odors, trucks and dust of a landfill, are some of the effects of this type of legislation. The importance of local community input and participation did not receive due attention and emphasis in these laws.

Some of the current targets which government should be aiming at are well known: 1) diversifying the economy while creating meaningful jobs; 2) supporting schools with a more equitable source of funding than the property tax, yet maintaining local control of curriculum and quality; 3) removing the waste and work disincentives from welfare programs while retaining adequate funding levels for those truly in need.

Certainly finding and maintaining the balance is the greater task. It is also without question that the search for balance requires the participation of individuals with an experienced ear and a clear voice.

Your vote is your voice. You can seek out those leaders who have thoughtfully listened to the people. In so doing, you will hopefully choose leaders with the skill and determination to maintain the targets and achieve the balance.

Military life is a challenge

The recruiting ads point out a lot of the benefits of challenge, achievement and personal growth that people can get from military service.

What they don't usually show is how much soldiers get to contribute to the challenge, achievement and personal growth of their fellow citizens. But recently, soldiers from two Army Reserve units in Inkster, got a chance to do just that — helping the Boy Scouts of America in their efforts to develop the knowledge, character and confidence of youngsters from the Detroit and Windsor, Ontario, areas.

The part-time soldiers — from Headquarters, 300th Military Police Command, and one of its subordinate units, 301st Military Police Prisoner of War Camp — provided people and equipment to support an international "camporee" sponsored by Northwest District, Detroit Area Boy Scout Council.

The campout took place in Lower Huron Metro Park in Belleville, and was attended by some 700 Scouts and Scout leaders from the U.S. and Canada.

The Reserve units provided a large tent, a generator and the water supply for the three-day, two-night event. Soldiers with medical expertise conducted "hands-on" first-aid testing, in which the youngsters actually had to perform various emergency measures.

First-aid scorers were Captain

Sandra S. Elkins, a nurse in civilian life, whose military job is assisting the 300th's chief of staff; and Staff Sergeant James N. Bostic and Sergeant Daryl T. Hunter of the 300th's medical section.

Members of the 301st's repair-and-utility section transported the tent and set it up with Scout assistance; delivered the generator and showed Scout leaders how to operate it; and emplaced a water trailer. They also retrieved the equipment following the campout.

Participating members of the section were First Lieutenant Richard A. Suckow, Sergeant Hoyte D. Mears, Specialist 4 Donald J. Hamilton, Private First Class Lyman H. Sibolowski and Private Michael N. Carroll.

Labor at work

While on a 3-day visit to evaluate the Downriver Community Conference career training programs, U.S. Department of Labor officials stopped to observe students at Wayne County Community College's Western Center. Above, at an Audio Visual Typing station, Freida Rutherford, Downriver Employment Director (from left); Tom Joyce, U.S. Department of Labor Contract Trainer; Ray Uhalde, Department of Labor economist and Robert Schneiders, President of the Educational Data Systems, Inc., watch as a student tackles the problems of the computer age.

U.S. Department of Labor officials visit Van Buren

Officials from the United States Department of Labor recently visited the Van Buren area and various career training programs at Wayne County Community College. The Downriver Community Conference have contracted for these programs at the College's Western and Downriver Centers.

The U.S. Department of Labor officials, Ray Uhalde, Labor Economist and Tom Joyce, Contract Officer, came to WC3 to evaluate the programs and talk with instructors and students. The officials said, they "were very impressed with the quality and intensity of the program."

This program of the Downriver Community Conference, a $3.8 million federally funded project, is currently the only comprehensive re-training program for displaced workers in the nation. It services unemployed persons affected by plant closing of 15 Downriver communities.

Wayne County Community College and the Downriver Community Conference have designed an array of high-tech programs which include Electronics, Building Operations Management, Machine Tool, Bookkeeper/Accountant, Computer Data Processing, Word Processing and Drafter Detailer.

The DCC programs are very concentrated. It is not unusual for a student to attend class six to 10 hours a day, four days a week, accelerating training time to almost half the period of a regular academic program. This enables students to finish their training and get back to the job market quickly.

A popular example of a new high-tech programs attracting WC3-DCC/Consortium students is the Electronics program.

According to Western Center Electronics Technology instructor, Dennis Senko, completion of even the basic Electronics curriculum at WC3 will qualify students for entry-level jobs. "We hope to convey the fundamental building blocks which apply to most electrical applications," says Senko.

"The Western program is a sort of pilot situation, with heavy emphasis on the re-training needs of unemployed people who come to us with an interest in the Electronics field. Our goal is to make these persons employable with a specialty: competent in areas where productive electronic technicians are needed."

Much of the Electronics instruction at the Western Center in Belleville, comes from a "hands-on" approach. Available at WC3 facilities is state-of-the-art equipment in modern laboratory settings. In the instructional lab settings, Electronics students work in teams of two, facilitating learning with one another as well as the instructor.

Course work includes experience with Digital Systems Analyzers, Analog Signals, electronics studies relating to Robotics and the study of AC variations.

For further information relating to the Downriver Community Conference programs at Wayne County Community College, you may call Dr. Jo-Ann Terry, Assistant Dean Community Services/Continuing Education at 699-0200.

County's tax assessment decision means lower taxes

The decision by the Wayne County Commission not to lower property valuations below the 50 percent level actually resulted in lower taxes for persons in 233 Wayne County communities, according to state Rep. Tom Brown (D-Westland).

Brown, a member of the House Taxation Committee, said a proposal to equalize residential property at less than the required 50 percent of value would have increased taxes in those communities by more than $3.1 million. The reason is that the state guidelines, in reality, only require that property be assessed at between 49 percent and 50 percent of true cash value. But, if the state is forced to apply and equalization factor because local assessments are less than 49 percent, everybody is brought to the 50 percent level.

"State law requires that property be assessed at 50 percent of true cash value," noted Brown. "When assessments are below that level, the equalization process applies a factor to assessments to bring the assessment levels up to 50 percent. However, state guidelines provide that if assessments are between 49 percent and 50 percent, no increase is necessary.

"In 1982, 33 Wayne County communities assessed at more than 49 percent, but less than 50 percent. If the Wayne County Board had lowered these assessments even more (below 49 percent of true cash value), the state equalization factor would have brought the actual valuations back to 50 percent — higher than what they are now."

Rep. Brown said the tax savings for Westland homeowners totalled $457,983. Homeowners in Wayne saved $16,220 because of the board action.

"Property tax law is a complicated issue," Brown noted. "It's hard to understand that by refusing to lower property valuations, the Wayne County board actually saved the taxpayers dollars — but that's exactly what happened."

DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL RESOURCES OFFICE OF HAZARDOUS WASTE MANAGEMENT NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Hazardous Waste Disposal Facility Site Approval Board of the State of Michigan will hold a public hearing to receive public comment on the construction permit application received by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources from Environmental Management Systems, Inc., for the construction of a 70 acre hazardous waste landfill called City Sand and Landfill - Site #2 in Sumpter Township, Wayne County, Michigan. The public hearing will be held:

Date: August 24, 1982
Time: 7:30 p.m.
Location: P.N.A. Hall
45476 Harris Road
Belleville, MI

The proposed disposal facility location is shown on the map below. It will be located south of the existing Act 641 licensed sanitary landfill at 46805 Willow Road on property described as the N½ of the SW¼ of Section 28.

County: Wayne Nearest Crossroads: Willow, Arkona, Township: Sumpter and Elwell Roads
Section: 28

The Hazardous Waste Disposal Facility Site Approval Board consists of five permanent members (one each from Michigan Departments of Natural Resources, Public Health and State Police; and two appointed by the Governor, from Michigan universities) and four temporary members (two appointed by Sumpter Township and two appointed by Wayne County). The board will decide whether City Sand and Landfill - Site #2 hazardous waste landfill will receive a construction permit by October 20, 1982. As required by Sections 20(4) and (5) of Act 64, the board will receive public comment in person or in writing at this hearing, and in writing for 15 days after the public hearing. The complete application package may be reviewed at the Department of Natural Resources, Environmental Services Division, Office of Hazardous Waste Management, P.O. Box 30038, 8th Floor, Stevens T. Mason Building, Lansing, Michigan 48909 and at the Sumpter Township Hall, 23480 Sumpter Road, Belleville, Michigan 48111. Copies of the complete application package may be ordered from the Office of Hazardous Waste Management at the address listed above, for the costs of reproduction.

Builders of dreams

Kevin Ruark and his dream home

Westland man has 2 careers

By DENNIS NIEMIEC
Feature Editor

Neither the stifling heat of an African summer nor the bitter cold of a Michigan winter can stop Kevin Ruark. At least not when it comes to building homes.

Ruark's latest creation, a 1700-square-foot beauty styled in the architecture of the 1880's, is located at the corner of Hix and Glenwood in Westland. Among its features are a cantilever porch, country kitchen, three bedrooms, living, dining and family rooms, oak floors, two baths and a basement with wooden walls — the first of its kind built in Westland.

For the 24-year-old Ruark this house marks the latest achievement in construction work that dates back to his days as a student at John Glenn High.

"This is a working hobby," explained Ruark, who graduated from Houghton College in New York and is contemplating a medical career. "I began working with construction crews in high school and during the summers to help put myself through college.

"One summer I built mission homes in Niger, Africa," he added. "It was in the middle of the desert and the temperature hit 130 degrees. The houses were constructed of block, homemade brick and bamboo — it was nearly impossible to get wood.

"Building a home over there is 10 times harder and takes 10 times longer than here."

Maybe so, but Ruark had to battle some record snowfalls last winter while working on what he terms a "Southern Country Farm House," based on a floor plan he picked up from a North Carolina builder.

Despite the elements, Ruark and friend Buzz Armstrong of Westland completed the structure in six months ("It would have taken half the time in the summer," Ruark pointed out.).

Working 10 to 12-hour days for the most part, Ruark handled every task from structural design and purchase of the 100 foot-by-300 foot lot to the plumbing, carpentry and electrical necessities. He estimates the cost of the land and all materials at $60,000.

While featuring the look of the late 19th century throughout, the home also displays a number of concessions to the needs of the 1980's. Thermo-pane windows, steel doors, insulation and an energy efficient basement are visible signs of modern construction.

"I like the Early American look," said Ruark as he provided a tour of the home on a sunny afternoon. "My wife and I enjoy antiques and the look of wood, especially in a plaster and cement society.

"One of the things I enjoy about building a house is that I can sit back and think of how I want something to look... and then I can do it the way I want."

His pride and joy in this home, situated at 2686 Hix, is without a doubt the unique basement.

"Wood is not porous like cement," declared Ruark, showing off the basement walls. "Water can go through cement but this basement is easily 30 to 40 percent more energy efficient than a cement basement."

Otto 'Papa' Stout and his castles

Childhood fantasies come true

By SUE BACHAND
ANP Staff Writer

Otto Stout is a man who believes in dreams.

He believes so deeply that when his grandchildren had dreams of a castle in which to let their young imaginations create a medieval fantasy world of a culture long gone, he decided to do something about it.

That first castle, built long ago, was the beginning of a tradition for "Papa" Stout, who now has built either a scale model castle or doll house for each of his nine grandchildren. Actually, he began with a doll house for his first granddaughter, and then his grandson demanded equal treatment — only he requested a castle. And not just an ordinary castle. Stout recalled. His specifications included secret passageways, circular staircases, dungeons, moving walls and a spine-tingling torture chamber.

As his expertise increased, Stout began the addition of life-like wooden dragons, skeletons and tiny scale model carved wooden furniture. Each of his castles takes about two years to complete and consists of more than 20,000 separate pieces of white pine carved into sections to resemble the stone blocks which were used in original castle construction. Each block is meticulously hand painted in colors of brown, grey and green to create the moldy cement color of ancient stone.

And, Stout claims, his castles each have a basis in authenticity. Retired from General Motors for 10 years, he and his wife, Donna, have traveled extensively through Europe and seen the castles still standing in Italy, Germany, Austria and Switzerland. Each castle, Stout noted, is authentic in nature, but is made to please the individual child. A completed castle usually measures 4 feet in height and is on a 2 feet by 4 feet heavy plywood base with rubber casters for easy movability.

"The kids can take them anywhere, through the house, outside in the yard, they can really play with them and use them," Stout said. "And my granddaughters are now choosing the castles over doll houses."

During his tenure as a model castle builder, Stout, a 35-year

On the issue of the Social Security program, Kassel says, "that I favor legislation that would guarantee the future of our Social Security system by automatically drawing from other federal funded programs, such as foreign aid, but absolutely believe that even the thought of Social Security being 'threatened' is out of the question.

On the other hand, Chief Carney plans some action of his own.

"I'm going to the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office to see if they agree I took the right action. I feel I acted properly and I intend to clear my name.

"I was hung out to dry by members of the Township Board," Carney added, "and I was shocked by their action. But I'll tell you, since the meeting I've been contacted by a number of people in the community supporting my actions. If I had the same situation again, I'd do the same thing."

Utility rate proposal on ballot

By EDWARD E. MAHALAK
State Representative

Bills approved by the Legislature just before the start of its summer recess are steadily being signed into law by the Governor, including one which will place a utility rate proposal on the November election ballot. Actually there will be two somewhat similar proposals on the ballot. The other was placed there by citizen petition. Both are designed to eliminate automatic utility rate hikes to cover utilities' increased costs for fuel and power. Present law allows these increased costs to be passed on to customers, with no approval needed from the Michigan Public Service Commission. Both proposals would require Public Service Commission approval before any utility cost increases are passed on to consumers. The citizen petition proposal, backed by the Michigan Citizens Lobby and the Attorney General, would further prohibit utilities from having more than one rate case before the commission at any one time. Supporters of this proposition say it would make possible more effective consumer opposition to rate increase requests. The proposal adopted by the Legislature and signed by the Governor would allow several hearings to be conducted at the same time. Supporters say this allows for orderly rate regulation, and that the Citizens Lobby proposal would bring rate regulation to a virtual standstill. Also recently signed into law was a two-bill package enacting new requirements for trucks, truck-trailer combinations, truck combinations and double-bottom tankers which haul flammable liquids with flash points at or below 70 degrees Fahrenheit. One of the bills provides that a truck or semi-trailer manufactured after the effective date of the bill could haul highly flammable liquids in Michigan only if their capacity was less than 13,800 gallons. Additionally, all trucks and semi-trailer combinations with truck-trailer and double-bottom combinations, regardless of capacity, would have to pass a porthole pressure test. The second bill retains the inspection fees of $70 for each vehicle and $30 for each storage tank of firms and vehicles which store or transport hazardous materials. Without this legislation, the fee schedule would revert to the former $35 and $15, respectively. (The law defines hazardous materials as explosives, fireworks, flammable or compressed gas, oxidizing materials, poisonous fluids, liquified petroleum gas, and materials that are irritating, oxidizing, radioactive, corrosive or disease-causing). Another new law allows tax credits for farmers who allow charitable organizations to "glean" their crops. Gleaning is collecting crops left over after farmers complete normal harvesting. There are several organizations which collect these surplus crops and distribute them to the poor. What they glean would ordinarily go to waste in the fields. Under the new law, farmers who allow their fields to be gleaned will be able to claim a credit against their state income tax for 10 percent of the wholesale market value of the gleaned crops. Under a recently-signed law, taxpayers will be able to designate $2 of their income tax refund for a new Children's Trust Fund, with the money used to finance child abuse prevention and services.

Pershing is re-elected as Huron school board president

Jim Pershing was re-elected president of the Huron Board of Education at its annual organizational meeting held on Monday, July 12. Pershing, who took over as the head of the board a year ago when Jim Umin resigned at mid-term, was an unanimous choice of his colleagues. The board also elected Larry O'Kelley as vice-president; Jacqueline Dregansky as secretary, and treasurer Gary Tobin. In other board action, the board voted to set the tuition rate for the 1982-83 school year at $125 per student. The board will meet each third Monday of the month at 8 p.m. as the regular school board meeting

CITY OF ROMULUS ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

City of Romulus, Michigan — Street Beautification located on Goddard Road south of Sterling Street.

BID NO. 82-19

The City of Romulus is requesting bids for construction of Street Beautification. The project is to be constructed in accordance with the contract documents submitted by Christopher Wzaczny & Associates, Inc. The project is to be located on Goddard Road south of Sterling Street.

U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development, Community Development Block Grant funds are being used in this project. Special attention should be given to federal requirements for federally funded projects within the contract, which include Federal Labor Standards Provisions, Executive Order #11246 of September 24, 1965, EEO Requirements and the Davis-Bacon Act.

Sealed bids are to be received no later than 3:00 P.M. on Monday, August 16, 1982, at the City of Romulus City Hall, City Clerk's Office, 11111 Wayne Road, Romulus, Michigan 48174.

A pre-bid meeting will be held at a date, time and place to be announced. This project will be awarded in two contract categories — landscaping/planting and general contract. Copies of the plans and specifications may be obtained from the City Clerk's Office, Romulus City Hall, 11111 Wayne Road, Romulus, Michigan 48174, on or after 12:00 P.M. on Friday, July 23, 1982.

A payment of $15.00 if picked up, and $20.00 if mailed, will be required for each set of specifications. This sum will be nonrefundable.

The proposals must be accompanied by a certified check, or standard form of bid bond, for a sum equal to 5% of the total amount of the proposal, which sum shall be forfeited to the city by the accepted bidder upon his failure to enter into an agreement with the city within 10 days after awarded to him.

The City of Romulus reserves the right to reject any or all bids and waive any irregularities should it be deemed in the best interest to do so.

count. Shockley's dismissal from the board leaves it with only five members. Earlier, board president Charles White resigned under pressure when a group of residents challenged his legal residency. White reportedly resides outside the school district. The disappointing voter turnout on Monday represented only 3.6 percent of the total registered voters in the school district. According to school figures, there are 6,919 eligible voters in the district and only 375 took time to cast their ballots. Shockley, who earlier this month was selected to serve by colleagues as the new board secretary, was in his first four-year term. He became the target of the recall and was the only trustee that the recall group managed to get enough signatures to force the special elections. General Laney, spokesman for the recall group, said that his supporters will continue its work and "now we're going after" trustee George Williams. "It just goes to show that there are still some people in this city who believe in their schools and are willing to fight for them," Laney said. "We're not going to stop here. We're going to recall Williams." School officials said that the board has been unable to fill the vacancy created by White's resignation. Now they will also have to seek candidates to fill Shockley's position. The board looked over resumes of four prospective candidates, however, they couldn't find a consensus candidate. It will be up to the Wayne County Intermediate School District now to fill the vacancy. In the meantime, the board also couldn't agree upon its president. During the organizational meeting, no candidate received the necessary four votes. The trustees did, however, select trustee Naomi Jones, as vice president and Dr. James Clinton Jones will serve as treasurer. John Rucker, who recently won re-election to a four-year term, Mary Burge and Williams complete the present board line-up.

If Juvenile Court facility closes, where do they go...?

The condemned juvenile court facility utilized by all Western Wayne County has received a reprieve — but the impending shut down of the court could have far-reaching effects on the local communities using the Westland based office.

Last month, area police officials received various communications from Wayne County, announcing the immediate closing of the juvenile court. According to Canton Police Lt. Larry Stewart, this action would have made an already bad situation "a disaster." Police in Wayne, Westland and Canton all presently utilize the juvenile court for the processing of any records which might involve a juvenile, both criminal and protective. Judge Gladys Barsamian notified the local authorities June 2 that the facility would close June 11 and that all violations involving juveniles would be returned to the individual municipalities for processing.

A last minute phone call followed by mail communications cancelled the previous closing directive, and the court received a stay of execution until the scheduled Aug. 10 election when the County will ask for a 1 mill increase to help support the court along with general county operations.

Should the millage effort fail, as many, including Canton Police Chief Jerry Cox predicts, the result will be massive layoffs at the court levels, the juvenile protective home and the juvenile correction facility, along with layoffs in the Wayne County Sheriff's Department. It might even result, he noted, in the turning of existing prisoners into the streets as there will be no means of housing or processing the cases.

"I don't think people will pass this millage until they are satisfied that some responsible controls are established. I think people want more accountability for the spending," Cox predicted.

According to various local law enforcement officers, this millage failure and the subsequent closing of the juvenile facility would necessitate the use of the Detroit court system for all matters involving juveniles.

"They're going to take us back to the days of yore when it took an entire day to get one person taken care of," note Sgt. Dale Reynolds, juvenile officer with the Westland Police Department.

Such a transfer would involve the travel of all officers involved with the processing of any juvenile to the downtown Detroit court, located on East Forest, near Wayne State University, along with defendants and witnesses in many cases. "By closing this office, every action, all paperwork, must be handled downtown," Stewart noted. "It will mean double caseloads for them and I feel it will virtually eliminate probation. Who's going to drive from downtown Detroit to see kids in this area?"

"Our cases will be ignored. In reality, all Western Wayne County has really been dealt dirty," Stewart continued.

Reynolds seconded that opinion noting, "The sad part about it is that out-county residents aren't getting their money's worth now. They're pumping money into the system and in the end are getting cheated. They have been for years," Reynolds said.

City of Wayne Public Safety Director Ray LeCornu was also highly critical of the threatened closing. "It's necessary out here and has been serving the needs of the people of western Wayne county. There's no reason to change things now just because some county commissioners gave away the store in the past and now want to make everybody suffer."

Reynolds noted that the juvenile problem is just as severe in out-county areas as in Detroit. As 99 percent of the youths in the detention home are from the City of Detroit, he said, if out-county communities could redirect the amount of money they contribute to the support of that system they might conceivably open a local youth home in the area.

And Cox would also like to see improved operations in the out-county area suggesting a combination of circuit and probate courts into the district so that there would be a reasonably accessible facility for the processing of law enforcement cases.

"I've had my fill of inefficient court systems. That there is no concept of crime until the age of 18 is a farce. We're missing the boat on juvenile justice. Our first role is to deter crime and teach what's right — how do we do that with no system of punishment? Kid's attitudes are that they will only get a warning. And when a juvenile who's been in for breaking and entering three times before he's 16 has only gotten warnings, his attitude is that he can get away with it," Cox said.

"When he has a knife at her throat, a rape victim doesn't care that her assailant is only 14 — the age of the criminal makes no difference to the victim," the chief added.

"We presently end up with one or two out of 10 of our juvenile petitions approved and those dismissed are issued a warning or no official action is taken. Kids need to be conditioned to punishment for crimes," Cox said.

And according to Reynolds, watching the juvenile court system today is "an earth shattering experience." He maintains that the youth home is presently comparable to "doing hard time."

"How can we help these kids when we let them get bogged down in the system? Some kids that end up as wards of the state are ending up in the protective services home for months, not getting the help and counseling they need.

"The juvenile home has been almost like a threat that we could hold over these kids heads, if we shut the system down, they'll look at us and laugh.

"These kids aren't stupid, they know the law as well as we do," Reynolds said.

And LeCornu explained the entire situation as a dollars and cents issue.

"It's all a part of the county government disaster. They can save money by cutting personnel and equipment. In Wayne, too, it would mean the petitions and paperwork would be handled through the mail or by sending personnel to Detroit. That would mean additional costs in manpower and equipment for us ... all for the convenience of downtown Detroit," LeCornu stated.

"It's a money problem and if you look into the juvenile justice system, you'll find it's a case of mismanagement. It's been that way for years. We've bogged ourselves down by not using common sense. We've bogged ourselves down in a maze of complicated rules and in the long run, it's the kid who suffers," Reynolds added.

"We can't handle the effects of the proposed shutdowns. More and more we are experiencing a devastation of our ability to deal with criminals. We do an above average job of apprehension and arrest. It's useless if we have no place to go.

"Juvenile offenders are in a revolving door type situation. We know this year who the kids we'll arrest next year will be," Cox concluded.

Job workshop planned

Although Michigan's unemployment rate leads the nation, jobs are available for some unemployed persons who have received proper career counseling and educational training.

Schoolcraft College, in cooperation with Dr. Sonya Friedman, Moving Ahead, Inc. and other concerned organizations, will host a free, one-day conference on career opportunities and coping with unemployment on Saturday, July 24.

Workshop and discussion sessions will be conducted on such topics as solving medical, legal and financial problems. Information on job placement, career retraining, social services, and stress reduction will be available.

The conference is entitled, "Where Do We Go From Here?" Psychologist and television and radio personality Sonya Friedman will be one of the key speakers. Others include Dr. Conway Jeffress, vice-president of instructional affairs at Schoolcraft; Charles Ball, president of Manufacturers Bank of Livonia; Joan Greenfield, employment counselor; and Vincent Bruno, assistant director of UAW Region 1-A.

In addition to guest presenters, many Schoolcraft faculty and staff members will be on hand to answer questions.

Because of facility restrictions, attendance will be limited to 500 persons. To register for the conference, or for more information, call 591-6400, ext. 431.

Builders of dreams

resident of Westland, has achieved a great deal of fame for his woodcarving and woodworking expertise. He is the official medieval castle builder for the Ringling Brothers Museum in Sarasota, Florida, and attends the annual medieval festival there every year, and demonstrates his skill there.

He noted with a smile that his castles are well known in Germany, Switzerland, Austria and Germany and that he also has achieved a reputation for his craftsmanship in Florida, Arizona and California, while remaining relatively unknown in his home town.

He has obtained at no charge a lesson in woodcarving from a master woodcarver in Switzerland for his translation of a magazine article written in English which the carver couldn't understand. "I found out later that a lesson with that man normally would cost $2,500 for an hour. I was with him for a whole afternoon and learned more than I did in all my years on my own," Stout said.

Stout usually can be found working on a castle or dollhouse under the apple tree in his backyard. His work is done completely by hand and he uses on a small electric sabre saw for the cutting of some large pieces which he then hand carves into the proper block motif.

He has just begun to think of selling his creations, but is finding that the prices he will have to charge will seem quite steep. Each castle contains more than $250 in material, not including the hours of work he spends gently ministering to the detail. "I'm trying to develop a system where people can buy the base and say, one tower, and then add to it for a child," he said. Each of his castles is built to a one-half inch to one foot scale and he noted that many people are surprised at the size of the castles he builds. "Originals were so large, that the scale models in proportion are also very large," Stout noted.

"I don't really know about selling them though," Stout noted, running his hand gently over the rear of one of his creations. "I find when I try to commercialize my talent, it goes dull. When I give things away, it seems to multiply and even get better."

Letter that saddens but offers some hope

To the Editor:

I sat in the audience Wednesday evening, July 14, at the Wayne Community Center and listened to the City Council and members of the Wayne community discuss the issue of community homes for developmentally disabled persons.

I experienced very intense and mixed emotions.

I was incredulous that our organization has functioned in this community for 28 years and yet so many people have so little knowledge about the realities of being born handicapped or living with a handicapped person. I was even more incredulous when Rep. Mahlii used an analogy which seemed to equate handicapped persons to solid waste. We have not fulfilled the dictates of our constitution very well.

Second, I was pleased and supportive of those individuals who spoke to the need for all communities to accept responsibility for planning housing and services for their citizens who are unable to develop these opportunities on their own.

Our state and national organization has been very actively involved in this movement. There is no one more supportive of quality housing than the parents and families of a handicapped person.

Our Association deeply shares the questions and concerns raised with respect to insuring adequate staffing and adequate training. There is no group of people who care more about this issue.

Indeed, in Wayne County, our Associations are training their members and interested others to be volunteer group home monitors. This effort seems, with data now being gathered, to be very effective. We are supportive of all efforts to add or modify laws that will insure high standards for services to the handicapped.

I was also saddened to hear people expressing or intimating that institutions were the appropriate "home" for handicapped. Such statements can only be made if one has not visited an institution. I've seen many!

They are not pretty sights. Some comments from the audience seem to be indicating that families that placed their child in the institution were abdicating their responsibility.

Such attitudes could not be maintained if the speaker had ever agonized with mothers and fathers as their ability to meet their child's needs within their home diminished because of the financial, emotional, and physical stress placed on the family unit by the handicapped member.

At the time most families made the decision to institutionalize their child, communities offered little in the way of support — no education programs, no recreation programs, no respite centers and, few doctors or dentists who would meet routine health needs.

Families had to go it alone. When the strain, and only when the strain became too great, did most families finally accept an institutional placement. There were also a number of other families who, shortly after the birth of their child, were convinced by well meaning professionals that institutionalization would guarantee the best in care and training for their child and so the baby was committed to that life. I know of no family who institutionalized their child who still today is not suffering from their decision.

I wish more people could see how community placement, special education and all the other support services to the developmentally disabled person are working to the taxpayer's benefit. More retarded people are earning wages, paying taxes, spending their money in local communities than ever before.

Through programming we are finding that handicapped people have far more potential than was dreamed 20 years ago. Even the most severely handicapped person continues to respond positively to training. Like you and I, a retarded person is "never too old to learn". Key components of the learning process are individualized attention and opportunities to model from more capable persons and practice learned skills. Institutions cannot provide such a learned environment.

It is unfortunate that it took state legislation to educate and house handicapped persons in their communities. On the other hand, in the years I have worked in the field I have never seen a community — even when the abuses of Plymouth Center were being publicized — say, "My God, how horrible! Let's return our citizens to our community and plan for them. We can do a better job."

No, it took direction from state government to begin the process. Not even when economic information became available that institutional "warehousing" of our citizens was more expensive to the taxpayer than community alternatives, were many people impressed.

My curiosity was roused at the meeting. I find it hard to understand why it is not good for our normal children to learn from a very young age that not all babies are born with perfect bodies and not all babies are born with perfect minds.

Statistics being gathered indicate that retarded people are involved in inappropriate behaviors in the community at far less rate than we "normal" citizens. In reality, we probably have more to fear from each other. It is being found that retarded people make good workers, good neighbors, and good friends.

My hope is that many of the people in the audience do not have the 3% statistical rate of retardation for a population occur in their family. If there should be a handicapped son/daughter/grandchild/niece/nephew I feel confident many would begin to say silent prayers of gratitude that they live in America and in Michigan where all human life has value and communities are encouraged by state law to provide services to meet even the needs of those who cannot ask for themselves.

Where are citizens' rights in foster care controversy?

The impression has been given by some local newspapers that we, the people of Glen Street in Westland, are in agreement with the proposed Adult Foster Care Home for six severely mentally retarded at 33439 Glen by Northville Residential Training Center.

We are greatly opposed to this plan and have met with our mayor and city officials and discussed at great lengths the ramifications.

We have written to our congressman, Governor, State Senator and State Representative. Cong. Bill Ford responded stating it was not a federal issue and there was nothing he could do.

Mr. Tom Brown showed the courtesy of responding, stating that he would be discussing this issue with Senator William Faust within a few days. As of this date the issue remains in limbo.

The target date has been set for August per L. Starwas, Director who states that you should phone her if you have questions. She and no one else can say anything to alleviate our concerns.

How could one not possibly know this is only one of many issues which explains why our State is in such a financial mess.

My neighbors, as well as myself are most upset about the foster home. I am requesting that you show some concern for our problem and attempt to alleviate it.

First, we already have a school for the mentally retarded directly across the street from us. It is Wilson School. There is less than 1500 feet from it to the Glen residence where the proposed foster home is going in. The neighborhood has voiced no objections against the school. But I truly feel that we should not be expected to accept being surrounded by the retarded.

The statement is frequently made about patients' rights. What about our rights: (Citizens, taxpayers?)

I have lived at my present location for 20 years. My husband and I have worked and invested in our home yearly to make it what it is (comfortable). It is all that we have.

Next, please allow me to explain my position on this issue.

I am a Registered Nurse employed by the State at a Psychiatric facility. I have worked in the field of Mental Health since 1968. So, therefore, you can see that I have no prejudices toward the mentally deficient. I have chosen this field above all the others. I have all of the compassion, love and understanding that one could possibly possess for those less fortunate than myself, but I do not feel I should have to bring these people home with me.

I work the wards daily. I'm not sitting back in an office. I deal with the NOW behavior of these people.

I am not and have never been in approval of Adult Foster Care Homes in any neighborhood. Throwing the retarded into the community is not the answer. I strongly feel that private home owners and investors are profiting immensely from these Group Homes. I personally know of instances where these administrators are allotted x-thousands of dollars for transportation. They then obtained a vehicle for several thousand less than allotted. So therefore, they pocketed the remainder.

I don't profess to be knowledgeable on many issues. But I am an expert when it involves caring for and knowing the unexpected behavior patterns of the mentally deficient. One minute they're passive and the next they may be throwing a chair through a window, merely from being teased by someone. This is just one example.

If these patients can function so well independently with supervision, why aren't they home with their families where they can care for them? These patients have three major needs: a full stomach, a dry bottom, and loads of TLC (Tender Loving Care). These needs and many others can be assured in a structured environment supervised around the clock by licensed personnel. Can the same care be given by individuals working for minimum wage with a few weeks training who usually can obtain no other employment? No way!

These psychologists, social workers, coordinators and consultants all make it look so good on paper. You see, they evaluate the patients approximately fifteen minutes, maybe two to three days weekly. I live with these patients eight hours a day. These professionals with all of their memos and all of their plans and rules are unreal. They deal with expectations. I deal with the real thing.

I have been informed by the NRTC that the retarded are different from the mentally ill. I cannot accept this. If one is incomplete in their mental intelligence they are mentally ill, regardless if the cause is congenital, chemistry imbalance or senility.

We have a mixture of diagnoses at our facility. The schizophrenic and the retarded behavior are undistinguishable.

At any facility, patient abuse is always a major issue. Any and all unusual bruises or occurrences must be explained and investigated. Who is to say what goes on behind the closed doors of a Foster Care Home? Surely not the retarded patient.

How can you possibly train an employee in a few weeks to handle epileptics, diabetics, uncontrollable patients? You can not teach patience and understanding. Very few people can tolerate the actions of these patients.

These coordinators and support services will be in the comfort of their home when the patient gets angry and the adrenalin begins to flow. I'm sure the nurse will not be available at all times to sedate the patient. Who knows what will occur?

Some may say that I only want to save my job. How can this be so when R.N.'s are in such great demand? I love my job and receive a tremendous amount of satisfaction from my efforts. I feel that I am a Mother image to fifty-four patients five days a week. But when I leave my ward, I know that my patients' needs have been met.

We are known to be a democratic society, but I question this. How can our Legislature allow the citizens, the taxpayers, to be treated in this manner? We have no say and we are not even consulted, but we are informed of how it will be.

This is all so that someone can profit from the mentally retarded, handicapped, or schizo.

Label them as you please, their needs will remain the same.

From the Council Chambers

Tom Mooradian
Managing Editor

The man appeared to be playing "possum" with the City Council. At one time he appeared — and I'm not saying that he was — under the influence.

But, at times, he would come up with a scholarly remark. Therefore you wondered if it was us, the weary in the council chamber or the man.

This citizen appeared to have taken the day off to approach the Romulus councilmen on the issue of vandalism. He said that since the park — Kennedy Park, that is — was closed down at 10 p.m., most of the gang congregated near his establishment and held their ball and beer fest there.

When the evening ended, it usually ended with some damage to his property.

Obviously, no man or woman could tolerate such goings-on, therefore, he has urged police action. Swaying away from the issue, this man did however raise an issue that has touched off a debate.

That issue is: Can a council place a moratorium on, for example, licensing arcades. As a businessman, the new fad has attracted a lot of attention and has brought in money and youth and problems in some communities.

Romulus, for example, has a moratorium on new licenses for the arcades while the City Fathers debate what kind of ordinance it will adopt to cover the controversial games.

The man in the council chamber informed the Council that he believed that the Council had no right to place such a moratorium, and that he was willing to hire an attorney to prove it. In fact, the man said that he would show up in the City Clerk's office and make application for additional licenses.

City Clerk Raymond Cantrell told the man that hiring an attorney and appearing on his sacred turf was the man's prerogative.

"According to the moratorium placed by this council, I can't issue a license for additional video games," Cantrell informed the citizen.

"These games make money, no one will deny it," the citizen said. "Why then are you denying us the right? With a lawyer could I get them (a license)."

Romulus Mayor Pro Tem suggested to the resident that he should check with his attorney and take his legal advice.

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry, however, urged the citizen "to bear with us until we can get this ordinance on the books. We don't need a legal confrontation. I don't feel we should challenge anyone in the courts on this because I'm afraid we will probably lose."

How true. How true.

Whoever said council meetings are boring, never attended a Romulus meeting. Betcha when cable TV comes to this town, it won't be difficult to get a sponsor for it.

God's Will

*We do our best to please our God
In every way we can
Denying life the pleasures
Contrary to his plan.*

*We strain in our behavior
To keep our conduct good
And follow his commandments
As every mortal should.*

*We pray that he will help us
Along the narrow path
Control desires of the flesh
To not provoke his wrath.*

*We want to go to heaven
For a much deserved reward
And leave this evil influence
That saints can ill afford*

*If I should die and find not God
Much to my chagrin
I'd wish to be alive once more
To once again begin.*

Supt. Bedell clears statement

This is a response to the letter to the Editor in the Romulus Roman that appeared July 14, 1982. Your signature appeared on that letter and in the interest of fairness, I thought I should present some additional information for your consideration.

Let me begin by apologizing for any misunderstanding that occurred. I consider the Senior Citizens Tower in Romulus an asset to the community and on the occasions when I have visited, I have always found the residents to be very supportive of education.

I've enclosed for your information a copy of the section of the article that appeared in the June 30, 1982 Romulus Roman in which it was alleged that I said that the failure of the millage was the fault of the Senior Citizens Tower. As you can see, the newspaper writer had asked me the question, "What about the absentee vote?" My response was to point out that people who live in the Senior Citizens Tower do not pay taxes and people in all of Romulus who are low income can avail themselves of the Homestead Property Tax. You'll notice that my last statement said, "So again, I feel these people misunderstand what is happening here." I did not intend this remark to imply "we lost the millage" because of the Towers. In the two years that I have been in Romulus, I have appeared at two Senior Citizen Group Meetings and have been at lunch and other functions on four different occasions in the Towers. On only two of those occasions did I make any comments about millages and the state aid formula because they were appropriate times to do so. It is obvious that we have a communication problem, and I will work to correct that. We will ask for time at your club meetings early this fall.

I've discussed with our community education director, William Smith, the possibility of our submitting some type of news letter to be distributed to keep all the folks in the Senior Towers informed of school district and community happenings.

The person who wrote the letter for your signature "took me to task" in fine style and I'm very impressed with their writing ability. If that person or any others of you are interested, we would be most happy to work with you in establishing some kind of written communication with all the residents in the Tower. If any of you have an interest in this area, please contact us.

In summary, I apologize for any misunderstanding caused by my statement. I fully understand that the Senior Citizens Tower in Romulus is an asset not a problem to the community. We will be attempting during this school year to establish lines of communication with you to avoid any misunderstandings in the future.

Thank you again.

Westworld has many merits

EDITOR — It is unfortunate that misinformation and lies have created obstacles for Westworld.

A visit to the facility would prove that Westworld is a clean, friendly entertainment center which will offer the families of Westland and the area an opportunity to enjoy good food, fun, and games all under one roof.

KWIK Helpers say 'thank you'

EDITOR — The members of the Kwik Helpers C.B. Club of Romulus wish to give our personal thanks to the following Romulus merchants:

Bilmars Super Market, Alert Glass, Super Y Market, Keggers Market, Windiate Hardware, Romulus Hardware, Stears Hardware, Romulus Auto Supply, Romulus City Drugs, Bonnie Boutique, Arc Realty, Farmer's Insurance and The Romulus Bakery.

We also give our thanks to these out of town merchants: Cobbs Pharmacy of Wayne, D.D. Hardware of Wayne, Soren May Florist of Flat Rock and the New Boston Fruit Market, New Boston, for making our annual break-for-the-needy a real success. God bless and keep all of you from all the KWIK Helpers C.B. Club.

EDITOR — Might you be able to help with a photo — of any kind — of a ballplayer who was born in Wayne and managed to make it to the majors.

The pitcher is Don Arlick who pitched one game for the Houston Astros in 1965. If you might have such a photo, I would like to purchase it for my own private collection. He is one of 24 players from 1948 to 1981 that I do not have a photo for.

Did write to Mr. Arlick and the 22 waiving players last November, but did not get a response.

I certainly appreciate any help you or your readers may be able to offer. Thank you.

More on Mona's 'garage sales'

EDITOR — I have recently read Mona Grigg's article on "Garage Sale" etiquette, and enjoyed it immensely. However, you have failed to mention one item that is of great importance to the community as a whole.

JOYCE HAGELTHORN

And my little sister answered "A pin."

That is the way my mother always found out who was lying. She worked it the same way and I never caught on. I suffered and repented and did a lot of sweating when I wasn't the guilty party, and when I was, I suffered even more intensely.

That's why I think officialdom should have had my mother. Then it wouldn't matter whether lie detectors work or not. Or maybe someone could have worked into the machine the technique my mother used.

That way, guilty or not, there would be a lot of sweating, and I read in one of the 'think' magazines that what America needs is to get back to the good hard sweat of the brow!

MONA GRIGG

stayed away, it was equally unforgivable that the Grand Old Lady was allowed to languish.

Especially in light of the fact that she was sacrificed in order to allow her young up-start counterparts in the malls to thrive.

When the lights went up and the larger-than-life graphics appeared on the walls, and when the ceilings were covered with crazy-cut mirrors and disco music blasted its way through the halls, the magic of Hudson's left and the death knell began to sound. From that moment on, it was just another face in the crowd.

They, the counterparts, may well stay in the malls — and they may well call themselves "Hudson's", but they will never be anything more than crude imitations.

The only true "Hudson's" will be gone — and gone forever.

Tacking garage sale signs on utility poles, or tying them up on stop street signs is ugly. Also it makes the city look ugly, and it's a violation of a state law. The law prohibits the posting of any kind of signs.

In your travels you have probably noticed, that some eager beavers will tie a sign on a hydrant. I always thought that hydrants were the exclusive territory for dogs.

Van Buren does have programs

EDITOR — I would like to respond to the letter signed by Darlawn Dirk, which appeared in the July 14 issue.

She clearly stated: "You have a lot of activities for Senior Citizens but nothing for children but baseball and soccer. That's fine for some people who like sports, but what about the people and children who don't like them? What about tennis? Gymnastics? Swimming lessons, arts and crafts, etc?" She also states, "It's a shame a lot of us residents have to go to other communities to find something to do and leaving our money there."

Residents do not have to go to other communities to find something to do. It's a shame people won't take advantage of what's offered to them in their own communities.

Quirk school has tennis courts and it's in Van Buren Township. Van Buren Township also offered gymnastics but not enough people were interested in the program of gymnastics that's why they're not offered now.

Swimming lessons are available through Belleville Tiger Swim Club. For those who would rather have more sun, beach swimming, with qualified life guards, is available at Van Buren Park. Constructive habits can be nurtured through Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and 4-H. These programs can teach and be rewarding too. Programs include Arts and Crafts, Drama, Animal Husbandry, etc.

Drama Club through the Township is available too. Softball leagues are there for those who are interested. There is a miniature golf range and a Par-3 golf course for those who are interested in golf.

Extra-curricular activities are offered through most Van Buren schools. Programs include remedial Math and Reading for grades 4-6, Gymnastics, Soccer and for those looking to the future COMPUTER CAMP! Forms for these activities were passed out in school when school was in session.

The programs are there for those that are interested. I do not believe that our community is dead and boring.

In my opinion the Van Buren Township Board, the Van Buren School Board and the Belleville City Council should be commended for ideas and programs offered to EVERYBODY.

Romulus 'Outhouse' for Detroit?

EDITOR — I want to thank our Romulus city officials for the stand they have taken against DetRo and assure them and the public that they have my full support. I have studied the process through literature issued by the EPA and I am convinced it is a reasonable and workable process but we cannot allow them to put Detroit's "outhouse" on Romulus soil!

In the old days the outhouse was put far from the dwelling because of the smell. In the case of DetRo, something smells about how far away they want to put it.

I work close to the transportation business and, believe me, there is money in it.

The EPS report (MCD-79) says that most composting plants are located at or near the wastewater treatment plant to hold down transportation costs. It's no secret who will pay for all that additional transportation; it will be all of us who pay the City of Detroit for wastewater treatment.

The argument has been that there is not enough land available near the treatment plant in Detroit to put DetRo there. Well, Mayor Young didn't mind moving families to build a huge GM plant in Poletown — he got the land for that. On the other hand he is also a proven master at negotiating trucking contracts. Maybe that's what I'm really concerned about. Keep up the battle Romulus; we may be doing all of Wayne County a big favor.

Foster Care is everyone's problem

EDITOR — May I comment on the Adult Foster Care Homes dispute in Wayne? Last evening we witnessed a media-hype over adult foster care homes from our front-yard.

As I was watching this circus with Channel 7 TV news, I wondered if my fellow neighbors knew what a group home is all about.

A year ago I too was against homes that cared for "mentally ill" people or "retarded" people. My four-year old son taught me not to fear "abnormal" people or be prejudiced. My son was born with birth defects. He has been in hospitals more times than I care to remember. He has required special education through the Wayne-Westland Early Intervention program due to impaired speech and separation anxiety.

Some of his friends in his school are "retarded" or "mentally impaired." They are humans who have feelings, needs and need support. They are not freaks. My heart goes out to parents of mentally impaired youngsters because people are afraid of them. My son's physical impairments aren't visible to the public, so he isn't gawked at in public. We do get questions when he is without his shirt on as to why he has surgical scars or why he cannot talk plainly.

That hurts me but not as badly as a parent of a mentally impaired child must feel when people whisper or stare at their impaired child.

These children grow up. They have the right to decent housing and a "normal" life. Why can't they live in a residential area like "normal" people?

I visited a group home in Livonia with parents from my son's school. It was a very well run home with constant supervision. The young adults were proud of their home and how well they were able to function in a "normal" world. This is no much better than being locked away in an institution. These homes also give aging parents of impaired young adults hope that their child will have a place in this world after they pass on.

I ask my neighbors to research these homes. Visit a group home and talk to the residents. They may be surprised and find out that they aren't raising mad idiots who will run rampant down their quiet streets.

One more point. Everyone thinks these so called "impaired" people are not their problem.

I feel we are all obligated in helping those who have problems helping themselves.

One day these neighbors of mine may be forced with caring for an impaired child or adult.

I, too, never thought it would be my problem. Now it is my way of life.

reflections

How to tell a lie

Today I was thinking about lies. And the reason I was thinking about lies was because I had just finished reading an article in Science '82 on whether lie detectors lie or not.

I'm really not going to write about whether I think the article has any validity or not, because if the truth were known, I haven't the faintest idea.

What the officialdom of America should have had when they were trying to figure out whether someone was lying or not, was my mother.

No one could ever lie to my mother.

You could come in with a real good story and tell it with conviction and the absolute know that you hadn't given yourself away in any way.

And she would turn those great eyes on you and say, "Now tell me the REAL story."

I found out my mother knew all about whether anyone was lying or not the time my little sister had scratched a house on mother's best table, with a pin. The house had windows and doors and smoke coming out of the chimney.

Every morning mother polished that table. She would rub and shine and shine and rub.

The morning she discovered the house scratched in the wood, she turned to her two little girls and asked who had done it. Neither one of us knew anything about it. She looked long and thoughtfully at me, and even though I knew I hadn't done it, the palms of my hand got sweaty and my face began to burn. And then I stuttered.

"I d-d-d-didn't d-d-d-do it," I stammered.

"Me neither," said my little sister, holding her doll away from her so she could see it better.

Mother didn't say anything, and I was miserable. I knew she suspected me, and I spent the whole day trying to figure out a good story to tell that would convince her I hadn't done it.

My little sister played with her dolls and even played with my dolls.

"Did you scratch the house on the table?" I asked her.

"Nope," she answered.

Mother didn't say anything more about the scratch and everything seemed to be normal. But I knew. I knew that the truth would come out whether it was the real truth or not. I figured since I was older than my little sister and could draw better houses, and the house scratched on the table was a real good house, that I must have done it without knowing I had done it, and I figured my mother would know, and I wasn't sure what was going to happen after that.

And mother did know.

The next morning as she dusted her beautiful table, she said to my little sister,

"Did you scratch this house with a needle or a pin?"

felt... privileged. Someone had found the finest craftsmen, the finest artisans, to put the finest touches to the interior of that building, and here we were, absolute nobodies, enjoying it all freely and for free.

Celadon Green was what I remember as the color of Hudson's. There were no hot pinks or purples, no glaring reds, whites and blues — only quiet, understated grayed tones. It was — elegant.

Then, just before Hudson's built Northland, we moved to Southfield, and, with the splashy new kid sister so close by, there was no need to go downtown. It was the beginning of the end, they say now.

I've been back to Hudson's downtown a few times since the Golden Days, and each time it became more and more evident that she was languishing. It was like watching an old and dear friend die. Soon it becomes too painful to watch and you take the easy way out. You stay away.

If it was unforgivable that we beyond anything these two hick kids had ever seen. People spoke softly in Hudson's and scents permeated the oak-paneled walls, giving it an exquisite odor indescribable and all its own.

There were uniformed operators at every elevator, and, once we learned how to say "mezzanine", we said it a lot. From that grand aerie, we could look down on the perfume counters or watch the people coming into or going out of the heavy oak and brass revolving doors. We went in and out of them, ourselves, sometimes just to be going in and out.

Did anyone ever go to Hudson's just to buy something and then leave? I don't know. We never did. Going to Hudson's was an experience worth savoring.

As we went up, floor after floor, things got quieter; almost eerie. As though we were intruding, somehow, and our $20 bills weren't nearly enough to cover the cost of admission.

When we got over our fear — when no one threw us out — we

The 'real' Hudson's

In the early Fifties, when I was just outside of being a kid, but still outside of being an adult, I read "Seventeen" magazine and spent most of my Saturday afternoons roaming around downtown Hudson's.

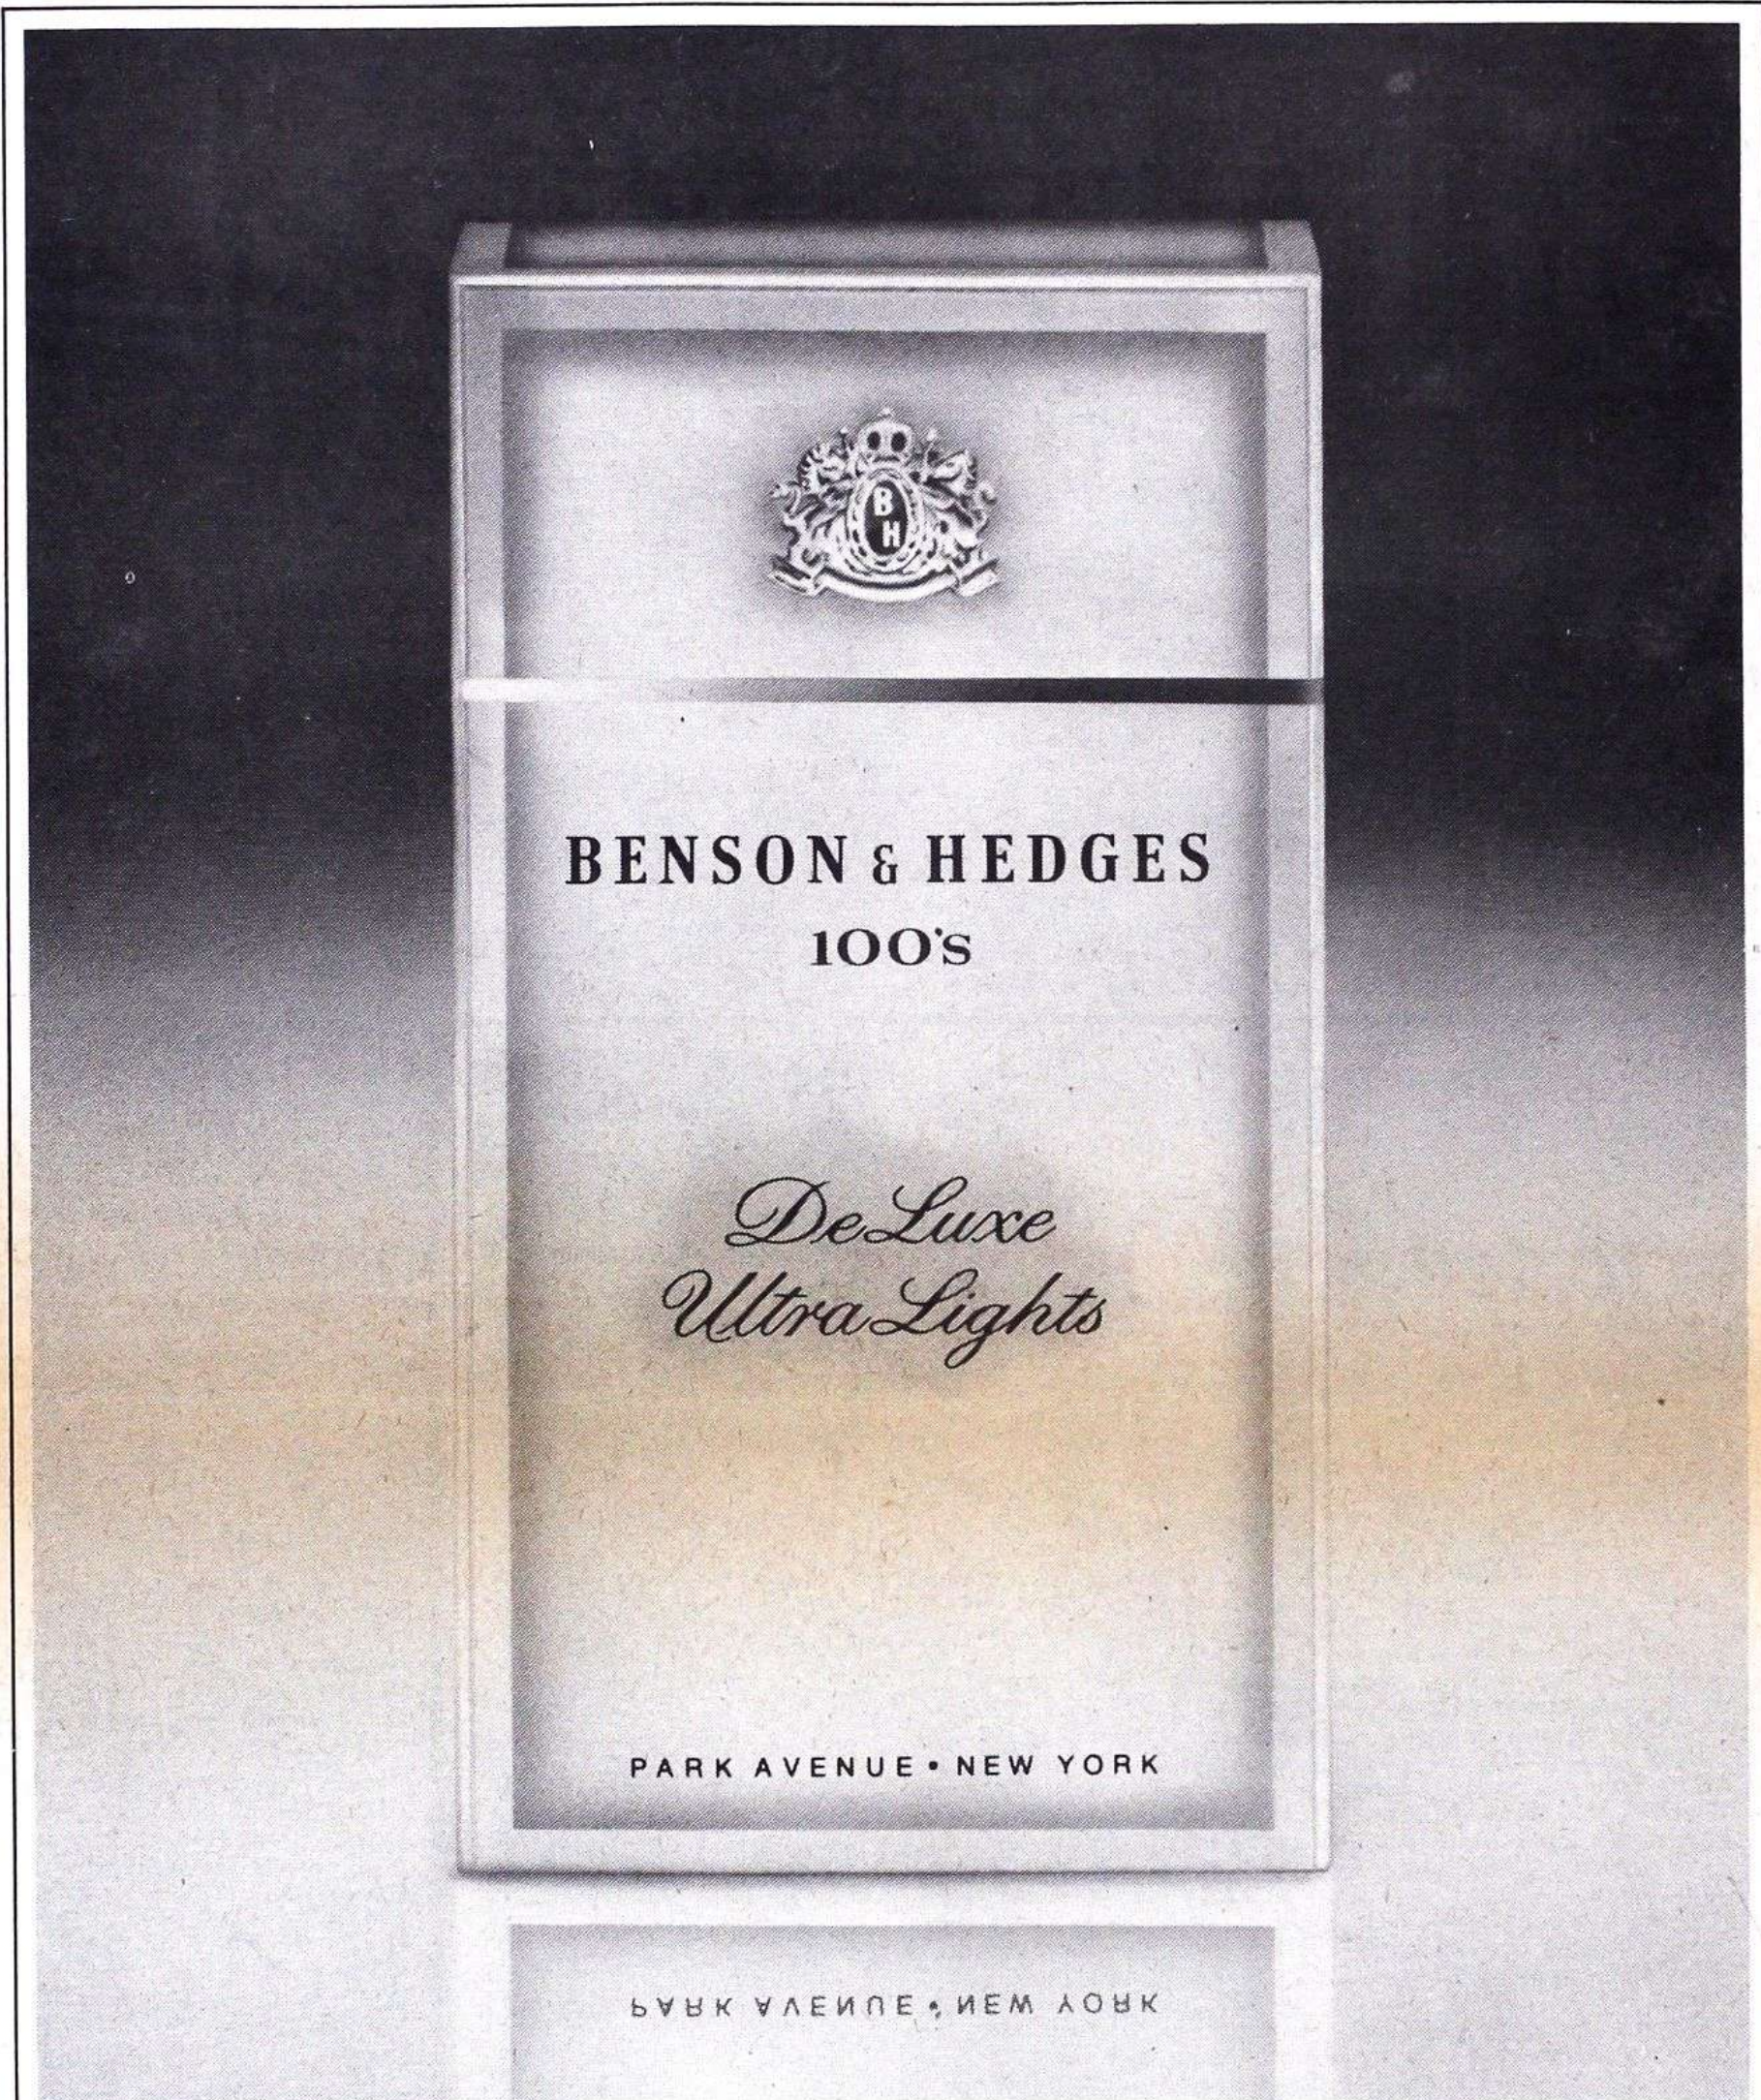

My cousin and I would take the bus from Highland Park, past Briggs Stadium, to the fairy-world of Downtown Detroit. (If you never saw Downtown Detroit in the Fifties or before, you really missed something.)

We would get off the bus and race to Hudson's, breathing a sigh of relief when we turned the corner and saw it was still there.

Twice a year we went there rich: Once when school started in September; then again when the semesters changed. We were each given a crisp $20 bill by our mothers, who ordered us to spend it on skirts, blouses and/or underwear, and not on make-up, jewelry and/or hot fudge sundaes.

To enter downtown Hudson's was to enter Buckingham Palace; the Taj Mahal. It was elegance

Nautilus Sub Shop has special bargains for diners in Westland

By DENNIS NIEMIEC
Feature Editor

At the Nautilus Super Sub & Pizza Shop a two-for-one special offer is more than merely a sales gimmick. It's a means of introducing western Wayne County to 30 different submarine sandwiches and both round and square pizzas.

"I've seen where one owner complained about not being able to maintain quality with two-for-one prices," said Bill VanGoff, who is beginning his sixth year as Nautilus owner. "Well, we've been able to maintain our quality at special rates. We use no imitation cheese, we still put deli ham on the pizzas and all the meats are top quality."

"Of course, our profit margin goes down with the coupons," he added, "but we expect to do a greater volume."

Nautilus coupons, available in The Associated Newspapers, provide a free pizza with the purchase of any size of pizza and also a free sub and soft drink with the purchase of a sub and beverage of equal or greater value.

Diners will find nearly every kind of sub imaginable at Nautilus, which is located at 35045 Cherry Hill (just east of Wayne Road) in Westland. There's the Italian sausage, pizzaburger, meatball, tuna, club, vegetarian and on and on. Sandwiches come in eight-inch half and 16-inch whole sizes with double and extra items available.

Among the favorites is the Nautilus, a combination of Provolone cheese, ham, cooked and hard salami priced at $1.75 (half) and $3.29. Other subs include: roast beef ($2.30 and $3.99), corned beef ($2.30 and $3.99), Canadian bacon ($2.40 and $4.19), ham and cheese ($2.30 and $4.19), steak and cheese ($2.40 and $4.09) and steak and mushrooms ($2.40 and $4.09).

For $2.99 Nautilus features a whole reuben, steak and egg and Western subs. All pizza coupons are honored and a slice sells for 72 cents — round and square pizzas range in size from small to extra large.

"This is not a franchise store of any kind," explained VanGoff, a Westland resident. "We're independent — that's why you get personalized service here."

In addition to the subs and pizza, Nautilus features a variety of soft drinks, including two-liter bottles of popular brands for $1.29 and deposit.

Summer hours at Nautilus are Monday thru Thursday, 11 a.m. to midnight; Friday and Saturday, 11 a.m. to 1 a.m., and Sunday, 4 p.m. to midnight.

Science fiction films set

The Detroit Institute of Arts Afternoon Film Theatre has scheduled a series of science fiction films of the 1950's that should appeal to all ages.

After all, if there had been no "Forbidden Planet" or "The Day the Earth Stood Still," there couldn't have been a "Star Wars" or "Firefox." Among the featured films will be the original versions of "The Invasion of the Body Snatchers" and "The Thing," which prove that newer, bigger and more expensive isn't always better.

Films will be shown in the Lecture Hall, Holley Room or South Court Screening Room of the Detroit Institute of Arts Tuesdays through Sundays at 1 p.m. Admission is $1 at the door.

The movie schedule will feature:
Destination Moon, July 20-25
The Day the Earth Stood Still, July 27-Aug. 1
Invaders from Mars, Aug. 3-8
Twenty Million Miles to Earth, Aug. 17-22
The Incredible Shrinking Man, Aug. 24-29
Tarantula, Aug. 31 - Sept. 5
Forbidden Planet, Sept. 7-12
The Monolith Monsters, Sept. 14-19

Earth Vs. The Flying Saucers, Sept. 21-26
The Fly, Sept. 28-Oct. 3
The Invasion of the Body Snatchers, Oct. 5-10
Space Children, Oct. 12-17
Village of the Damned, Oct. 19-24
The Colossus of New York, Oct. 26-31
The Mysterians, Nov. 2-7
Queen of Outer Space, Nov. 9-14
On the Beach, Nov. 10-21

Latest news on Bowie, Ronstadt and Prince Charles

The next album from David Bowie will be the long-awaited double-live "Ziggy" LP.

Recorded at the Spiders From Mars' (Bowie's old band featuring Mick Ronson) last show in '73, the record was originally scheduled for release the next year but was held back because David felt the sound wasn't up to par. But now he's remixed it, and a two-record set from what many (myself included) feel was Bowie's best period should be on the record store racks by September.

Scotland Yard still hasn't released any word about the death of 25-year-old Pretenders' guitarist James Honeyman-Scott, who was found dead in a London apartment June 16th. The Pretenders as a band are iffy, with the record company saying yes, they'll definitely continue, and bandleader Chrissie Hynde confessing that she just doesn't know what'll happen.

Fatherhood isn't taking up all of Britain's Prince Charles' time; the rock-ska group Madness will play a command performance for the 33-year-old Prince come fall.

It's been years in coming, but Linda Ronstadt's new album, entitled "Get Closer," is finally being released. Likewise new LP's from loveable looney Lene Lovich, Garland Jeffries, and Neil Young, which will be a reunion of sorts for Young and original Crazy Horse guitarist Nils Lofgren.

The Stray Cats, who put on the best show of 1981, will return, bringing their special brand of rockabilly to Clutch Cargo's July 30th. For more information call 964-5370. This one is highly recommended.

Tasty fish without secret recipe requires some preparation tricks

By BOB BREWSTER
Special to Playtime

Have you ever wanted to know the secret recipes of the fish restaurants?

Seems they always manage to turn out hot, crusty, delicious chunks of fish, not at all like what you can make at home.

Although the professional chefs won't divulge their secrets, I've learned some of the tricks of the trade.

The main thing is to immerse the fish in a deep pan of clean, hot vegetable oil or lard. The temperature of the grease must be constant at 375 degrees Fahrenheit, so a thermometer capable of reading that high is needed.

You can improvise using a small cube of bread. Drop it into the hot oil and if it instantly foams, the temperature is close enough to proceed.

Don't put too many pieces into the fryer at one time. Doing this cools the oil and doesn't give the fish that quick-cooked flavor you want. Cook the chunks for four minutes, then remove them to drain on a rack or paper towels.

Following is a recipe for a dry coating mix that works well with deep-fried fish. Dip the fish into heavy cream, or in melted ice-milk, a form of ice cream available at groceries.

For a seasoned coating mix, try the following combination:

2 cups fine, dry bread crumbs, 1/2 cup flour, 1/4 teaspoon thyme, 1/4 teaspoon powdered cloves, 4 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons paprika. This makes enough mix for three pounds of fish.

★ HIGHLIGHT ★
The National Sports Festival concept is the brainchild of past U.S. Olympic Committee President Robert Kane who envisioned the need for summer competition for American athletes in non-Olympic years. From the first Festival in 1978 at Colorado Springs, the event has been structured on regional lines, with athletes selected by the National Governing Body of each sport to represent teams from the East, South, Midwest and West. The 33 sports include virtually all of those from both the Winter and Summer Olympic Games as well as the Pan American Games. TV coverage will focus on boxing, track and field, diving and figure skating... but there will also be ice hockey, basketball, swimming and gymnastics.

4:30-6PM CBS (3:30 Cent./Mt.)
CBS SPORTS. Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini's first WBA lightweight championship defense, against Ernesto Espinoza.

World's Fair, Florida are on honeymoon itinerary

Following a two weeks honeymoon which included Florida, South Carolina and the World's Fair in Knoxville, the newly wed Donald Martin Silvenis took up residence at 47745 Bemis Rd., Belleville.

Anna Maria Ostrowski, the daughter of the Paul J. Ostrowskis of 21295 Sumpter Rd., Belleville, became Mrs. Silvenis in a May 15 ceremony at St. Anthony's Catholic Church. The Rev. Raymond S. Skoney presided at the four o'clock rite before some 250 assembled guests.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD M. SILVENIS

Music for the occasion was provided by Steve Evanski, the trumpeter, Patricia Evanski, vocalist, and Jerry Evanski, organist and vocalist.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose to wear her mother's wedding gown, a Chantilly lace creation featuring a scooped neckline with a wide lace collar, long tapered sleeves and a lace tiered bouffant skirt.

Her silk illusion veil, cut in mid-back length, was held by a pearl headpiece and her bouquet was comprised of white silk roses, statice and baby's breath.

As her sister's maid of honor, Karen Ostrowski donned a long-sleeved sheer white gown accented with an orchid sash tied at the front and tucked a comb of white orchids in her hair. The bouquet she held was made up of silk orchid flowers, purple statice and baby's breath.

The quintet of bridesmaids in similar gowns, also made by the bride's mother, included Lori Ostrowski of Belleville, cousin of the bride; Lynda Bennett of Orinda, Cal.; Donna Lochrie of Westland, sister of the bridegroom, and Lori Vicchy and Kathy Posegay, both of Belleville.

Nine-year-old Walter Ostrowski served as ringbearer and Annette Radisovich filled the role of flower girl in a short-sleeved sheer frock. She wore a wreath of orchid ribbons and flowers and held a white basket filled with orchid silk flowers.

The bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Silvenis of 780 N. 110th St., Naples, Fla., asked Terry Landoski of Belleville to be best man. The corps of ushers included John Landoski of Adin, Cal., formerly of Belleville; Tony Ostrowski and Chris Ostrowski of Belleville, brothers of the bride; Stan Alexander of Ypsilanti and Bob Pellegrini of Belleville.

A formal mauve gown was the choice of Mrs. Ostrowski for her daughter's wedding; the bridegroom's mother selecting an orchid sheer gown for the occasion. Both were honored with corsages of silk orchid roses and stephanotis.

A reception for some 550 relatives and friends followed at the PNA Hall.

An employee of Ace Hardware, the new Mrs. Silvenis is a sophomore pursuing a nursing degree at Eastern Michigan University. Along with her husband, she is also a member of the Kalisz Song and Dance Ensemble. A graduate of Belleville High School, the bridegroom was formerly employed by the A&P Store in Ypsilanti.

The rehearsal dinner at Trajan's in Belleville was hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Joe and Hazel Allen

Open house for 50th year

Residents of this area for some 48 years, Joe and Hazel Allen will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary August 1 when their children host an open house at the couple's home, 8830 Rawsonville Rd., Belleville, from two to five in the afternoon.

Hazel Garlick became Mrs. Allen on Aug. 1, 1932 during a private ceremony in Detroit. The Allens have since added seven children, 17 grandchildren and one great-grandchild to their family tree.

Hosts and hostesses at the upcoming celebration will be Jerry Allen and his wife, Darlene, of Davison; Keith Allen and his wife, Wanda, of Audubon, Pa.; Clifford Allen and his wife, Claudia, of Ann Arbor; Lois Freeman and her husband, Leon, of Mc Kean, Ill.; Sharron Sheridan and her husband, James, of Adrian; Beth Miller and her husband, George, of Ashburnham, Mass. and Neil Allen and his wife, Nora, of Sterling, Ill.

Candlelight rite unites Price, Thorp

Laurie J. Thorp and John K. Price were joined in marriage June 25 at the First Congregational Church in Roscommon with The Rev. Thomas Bruno officiating at the 9 p.m. candlelight rite.

The bride was gowned in white silk chiffon with a ruffled capelet, her headpiece being a circlet of baby's breath. Adding contrast to her ensemble were the single red rose, baby's breath and fern which she carried.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Thorp of Caro, the bride and her husband were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Wurcz of Roscommon; Mr. and Mrs. Darel Adams of Belleville and Lois Carrie and John Wyman of Ypsilanti.

The bridegroom is the son of former Belleville residents, Mr. and Mrs. Cletus E. Price of Roscommon.

A 1981 graduate of Caro High School, the new Mrs. Price attended Kirtland Community College in Roscommon. A 1977 graduate of Belleville High School, the bridegroom also attended KCC and is employed as a master mechanic at Scheer Motors in Grayling.

The wedding dinner was hosted by the Kevin Wurczs at the Brass Lantern in Prudenville. Another reception is being planned by the bride's parents.

The newlywed Prices are making their home in Roscommon.

It's a Date

BELLEVILLE — The Belleville Area Senior Citizens Club will meet July 22 for a potluck picnic at 5 p.m. Homer and Frances Cothern of 41780 Bemis Road (between Martinsville and Renton) will host the get-together.

BELLEVILLE — Carousel Co-Op Nursery, which is located at 11900 Belleville Road, is currently accepting applications for fall enrollment for youngsters 2½ to 4½ years of age. For further information, call Joy Clark at 697-9228.

BELLEVILLE — September Days Seniors who signed up for the "Triple Treat" trips to the Cascades, African Safari and Michigan Space Center on July 22, please note! Lunch is "on your own"; the newspaper was misinformed as to that information.

ROMULUS — The Romulus Historical Society will meet at 7 p.m. July 21 (tonight) at the Romulus Public Library. The club's official photographer, Linda Patrias, will present a program of slides of past society events. The public is invited.

ROMULUS-BELLEVILLE — Overeaters Anonymous holds two meetings each week: at 11 a.m. on Mondays at the Community United Methodist Church, 11160 Olive St., Romulus, and at 7:30 p.m. Thursdays at the First United Methodist Church, 417 Charles St., Belleville.

ANN ARBOR — The Tuesday Night Singles will meet July 27 at the American Legion Hall on South Main Street and dance from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. to the Don Wilson Band. Ballroom dance lessons precede the party at 7:30 p.m.

ROMULUS — A series of puppet shows will be held July 26-30 at 1 p.m. at the Romulus Public Library, 11121 Wayne Road. The Joy Company is making the presentation.

Women of the Moose

Belleville Chapter 1135. Women of the Moose, held its annual College of Regents chapter night July 12. Twenty-six collegians from Wyandotte, Taylor, Ypsilanti, Dearborn Heights, Jackson and Belleville participated in the ritual. One new member was enrolled, Katherine Seres, sponsored by Helen Jacobs.

Helen Wilsey, Chairman of the day, presided over the Changing of the Tassel ceremony. Marietta Kerner had her green tassel changed for a red one symbolizing she has had her College of Regents degree for one year.

Lois Anguilm, the new Collegian, spoke on her trip to Jacksonville, Fla. where she received her degree.

Betty Wright, Deputy Grand Regent of Michigan, also gave a talk on the trip to Jacksonville and Moosehaven at the International Convention which was held in June. Marianne Price, Past Deputy Grand Regent, also told of her trip there.

Helen Wilsey presented the Sr. Regent with two checks: one for the Mooseheart Scholarship and Maintenance Fund and one for the Special project assigned to the College of Regents committee.

potpourri

By Lee Smith
Suburban Living Editor

Although few of us like to admit we're "average" human beings, it is nice to know that in rating as such, we're also quite "normal." On perusing the Toledo Blade recently, I chanced on the following which caused scenes of the past to zoom through my mind:

"Money, children and long-distance driving are said to be the three main sources of argument between husbands and wives. Debate over money and children is too varied to itemize. (Besides, you already know all about THAT!) In the matter of trip driving, however, researchers claim most husbands complain that their wives can't read road maps and most wives say their husbands are too stubborn to stop and ask directions."

Now, that last sentence could have been custom-made for ol' BG and LHS — me mate and yours truly! We HAVE had a few go-rounds which've steamed the car windows during our travels, and for those very reasons.

To get things in perspective, I DO enjoy looking at maps — when they're laid out flat, under a direct light with no one shouting for directions or big green route signs whizzing by on the highway. I also particularly appreciate using a high-powered magnifying glass when studying said map and did so even six years ago, BB. (before bifocals.)

There is a tremendous difference between locating the by-pass around Basic City and the cut-off through Outletsville when both parties are in calm frames of mind and finding said arteries when a frenzied "driver" (adult, male) screams, "QUICK! QUICK! Where do we turn to avoid the construction in Exotic Birdland!"

I am thusly startled out of my little reverie, the map is usually out of reach, folded wrong or upside down; I have to switch from sunshades to 3-D specs and by that time — the windows are too foggy to see the road signs anyway.

I think it might've been on that memorable trip to New England that I learned to cuss (first under my breath, then in stereophonic sound!) Our trio in the back seat not only realized that Mama could spout nastiness but that Daddy could be awful damn stubborn about asking directions. They learned too, who their parents considered the worst driver and the worst nag among their circle of acquaintances since Mama had shouted, "You're driving just like..." And daddy rebutted with, "Oh, yeah, well you sound just like..."

finding the follow-up signs inexplicably missing and bumping through miles of dry, dusty construction Lawrence of Arabia finally succumbed to an unquenchable thirst and the tiny sobs emanating from the back seat, pulled off and ran into an isolated oasis to (believe it or not) — ask directions!

That's when the Wicked Witch of the West (spell it anyway you want) turned to the innocent-victims-three and dictated through clenched teeth, "If this is going to teach you anything at all, it's to TAKE A MAP READING COURSE before you get married..." (and then, don't get married, I almost added.)

Conclusion: A couple decades later Mrs. Magoo still can't read a road map and LeRoy Lockhorn still won't ask directions. BUT — now we fly, take cruises or travel with another couple; that way one-out-of-four SHOULD be able to navigate. Besides, you manage to keep your trap shut when you're in mixed company!

KITCHEN KUES

HERE'S AN EXCELLENT, quick-quick sauce for those vegetables that're making themselves known in your gardens. Experimented with it on broccoli and a few nights later tried it on salmon steaks we'd grilled. It was great both times and would be the gourmet route to doctoring up cauliflower, cabbage, carrots, onions, other fish — you name it.

For novice cooks in the readership, always go easy with anything calling for prepared mustard; start with small amounts, taste and work up to the desired degree YOU personally like.

EASY SAUCE: Mix ½ cup mayonnaise with 1 tablespoon prepared mustard and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; stir well. Chill.

AND WE'VE ANOTHER with a mustard base, only it's DRY mustard this time. A bunch of us got to sample this during a recent cocktail party and liked it — after getting over the initial shock that it wasn't a caramel or butterscotch topping over the cheese. And we've Naomi Atchinson of Northville to thank for this one.

VERMONT MUSTARD: Mix 1 cup white vinegar with 3½ ounces dry mustard and let stand overnight. Next day beat 2 eggs, add 1 cup sugar and combine with mustard mixture. Place in double boiler and cook until thick, stirring often. Refrigerate.

We dipped into this with Triscuits after it was poured over a large portion of creamed cheese on a serving platter. Naomi also added that it's delicious served with ham. Another double-duty sauce!

ZODIAC TIME AGAIN

Cancer merges with Leo this week and in that former category and having birthdays on the 18th were three old-timers: Red (Clem Kadiddlehopper) Skelton who turned 69 (and did you know his real name is "Richard"?), Harriet Nelson, who's a year younger, and Hume Cronyn, who was 71.

Then there's a young chick in the crowd who uses the alias "Smith" who gave her mama a rough time at St. Joe's on that same date a few years ago.

Singer Vikki Carr hit the big four-oh on the 19th, the same day character actor Pat Hingle reached 58.

Today a couple of our English cuzzins, Sally Ann Howes, a London bundle, and Diana Rigg, a Doncaster babe, are celebrating their 48th and 44th respective birthdays. Natalie Wood would've been 44.

And what do Cat Stevens and Robin Williams have in common other than the genre of their names? Why they've a July 21 natal date which makes them 34 and 30, respectively. That same day Don Knotts will be 58; Kay Starr, 60; Isaac Stern, 62; and Paul Burke, 56. And they're the last of our Cancer notables.

Rounding out the week and starting the Leo cycle is a native Detroit, Margaret Whiting, whose 58th birthday is on the 22nd, and a Westerly, R. I. baby, Ruth Buzzi, who'll be 46 and Lynda (Wonder Woman) Carter both were delivered on the 24th.

FOR TRIVIA COLLECTORS

• Nine of our states got their names from the rivers that flow through them — Minnesota, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Mississippi, Nebraska, Ohio, Oregon and Wisconsin.

• Charles Lindbergh was the 67th person to fly across the Atlantic but the first to do so alone, however.

• Australia is the world's most arid continent. More than two-thirds of its vast land is desert.

• "Abracadabra" was the magical formula of the Gnostic religious sect of the second century and was used to invoke the help of benevolent spirits to ward off affliction.

• The sea elephant's nose inflates up to 20 inches when he gets angry.

• To travel fast overland, the penguin lies on its stomach and slides over the ice, using its wing flippers to push off.

• Americans spend about $400 million a year on razor blades.

• The aardvark, the ant-eating animal from Africa, got its name from Dutch settlers in the 1600's. Translated, the name means "earth pig."

• The average American eats about four pounds of food a day.

THE BOTTOM LINE: Success isn't how far you got, but the distance you traveled from where you started.

(And a special thank you to Mr. G. for his cute note saying "The Bottom Line is tops with me.")

Frost-Staffeld

The engagement and autumn wedding plans of their daughter, Teresa Marie Frost, and Kevin Charles Staffeld are announced by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Frost of 8344 Hollywood, Romulus. A 1981 graduate of Romulus High School, the bride-elect is employed at Service Marketing Inc. of Southgate. Her fiance, the son of Mrs. Margaret Staffeld of 7277 Middlebelt, Romulus, is a 1976 alumnus of Romulus High School now working at Krug Lincoln Mercury in Dearborn. St. Paul's Church of Christ in Taylor has been reserved for their October 2 altar date.

Enzenauer returns to Germany after leave

By Mrs. Joseph Spring
699-4021

John Enzenauer has returned to Frankfurt, Germany after spending a month's leave with his family in Michigan. While in Belleville he visited his uncle, Allan Owens and family in Hudsonville, and traveled to Carp Lake to see his grandparents, the Cliff Prains and great-grandparents, the John Pachys. He also attended the Enzenauer family picnic July 4 at the home of his grandparents, the Charles Enzenauers, and held a party which was attended by many of his friends and classmates.

After having spent several days with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Potts, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Potts and daughter, Amy, of Saint Charles, Ill. left for Eagle where they spent a few days with Mrs. Dolly Contandt, mother of Nancy Potts.

The following Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Potts joined the family at Eagle for a surprise party to help Mrs. Contandt celebrate her 75th birthday.

While the Gary Potts family was in Michigan, they all enjoyed a family reunion at the home of the Tim Potts family at Westland.

Mrs. Roberta Smaligo of East McKeesport, Pa. has been a guest this past week of her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Florian of Liberty Street.

Loralee Statham of Austin, Texas made a surprise week-end visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mericle, arriving July 9. While here they celebrated the Mericle's wedding anniversary and visited Loralee's grandmother, Mrs. Miles Berkey of Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Wilson were guests this past week of their daughter and husband, Carol and Gary Peterson at Lockport, Ill.

Mrs. June Hawkins joined her sisters and their husbands, Tom and Joy Thompson of Birmingham, and Emmett and Jean Seacord of Fallbrook, Calif., July 10 for a trip to Indianapolis, Ind. where they attended a golden wedding reception for the ladies aunt and uncle, the Rev. and Mrs. Ted Williams, at the Christian Church. They enjoyed visiting with many relatives they hadn't seen in quite some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wilson and the former's sister, Helen Cunningham of Plymouth and Dorothy Vedder of Saline, journeyed to Wheatley, Ont. last week to visit a cousin, Mrs. Orley Hodgson.

Mrs. Joe Parker and daughter, Mrs. Cheryl Sikes and children, returned home July 10 after spending 10 days in Florida. They visited the former's son, John Parker, at Monticello and together spent a few days at Panama Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nollf were recent guests of her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baylis of Marshall.

Having sold their home in Romulus, Mr. and Mrs. George Rupnow and family recently moved to their newly-purchased home on Madelon Street. Mrs. Rupnow is the former Peggy Murphy, daughter of Marie and Jay Murphy of East Huron River Drive.

Mrs. Muriel Smith of Romulus and friend, Mrs. Stella Cox, returned last week after having spent a week with friends at Traverse City. They also enjoyed the Cherry Festival, visited friends at Cheboygan and had dinner in Frankenmuth enroute home.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Korgal with Steven, Laurie and Marcy and Mrs. Peter Korgal on July 11 in celebration of Peter's birthday were his mother, Mrs. France Korgal; his wife's mother, Mrs. Sophia Rose; and the Jim Schultz family.

Others in the family who recently celebrated birthdays were 10-year-old Andrea Schultz and her mother, Mrs. Jim Schultz.

Funeral services for a one-time West Huron River Drive resident, Milton Bird, were held at the David Brown Funeral Home July 14 with Rev. Joy Arthur of the First United Methodist Church officiating. Although he annual reunion. Present for the potluck dinner and afternoon of visiting were 35 members from Albuquerque, N. M.; Marathon, Fla.; Dayton, Mansfield and Oberlin, Ohio; Saginaw, Standish, Millington, Flint and Vassar.

Relatives gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Korgal on July 11 in celebration of Peter's birthday were his mother, Mrs. France Korgal; his wife's mother, Mrs. Sophia Rose; and the Jim Schultz family.

Others in the family who recently celebrated birthdays were 10-year-old Andrea Schultz and her mother, Mrs. Jim Schultz.

Funeral services for a one-time West Huron River Drive resident, Milton Bird, were held at the David Brown Funeral Home July 14 with Rev. Joy Arthur of the First United Methodist Church officiating. Although he had been in poor health for several months, Mr. Bird died suddenly July 12 at 70 years of age. He was the son of the late Albert and Angeline Bird, and the brother of Velma Kulzer and Betty Parkinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Touse have returned from Constantine where they had spent six days with their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Touse and daughter, Jenni.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Gaddy of Romulus and the latter's sister, Mrs. Mabel Atkinson of Detroit returned home after having spent a few days with Cecil's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gaddy in Birmingham, Ala. Prior to joining Cecil at Phoenix, Ariz., the ladies visited relatives in Anaheim, Calif.

The Gaddy's daughter, Edna, who is with the U.S. Marines, also returned with them to her station in California.

Emmanuel Lutheran Church is setting for June wedding

Georgia Marie Sanders and James E. Wilson chose June 12 as the date for their wedding at Emmanuel Lutheran Church in Ypsilanti. Pastor Carl J. Leach presided at the double ring rite at 8:30 in the evening before some 50 relatives and close friends.

The ceremony joined in marriage the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Sanders of 45081 Willis Rd., Belleville, and the grandson of Mrs. Delilah Wentling of 320 Elder St., Ypsilanti.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a toe-touching gown of white nylon designed with a high lace collar, lace-trimmed illusion neckline and long sleeves on the empire bodice, and an A-line skirt which drifted into a cathedral train.

Complementing her dress was a hip-length veil banded in lace and held by a pearl-studded lace cap which had been made by the bride's sister, Deborah Bolton. Her bouquet was comprised of white silk roses, daisies and baby's breath.

Debbie Lane of Belleville, the bride's best friend, served as maid of honor in a blue and white floor-length sundress topped with a sleeveless lace jacket. She wore a wreath of blue roses in her hair and carried a white lace fan with blue roses and baby's breath attached.

The bride's sister, Deborah Bolton, and her niece, Angelica Hankins, both of Belleville, were bridesmaid and junior attendant, respectively.

Youngsters in the bridal party were 6-year-old Jason Siedhoff of Ann Arbor, the bride's nephew, and Georgina Bolton of Belleville, seven, a niece.

The bridegroom asked Chris Sanders of Belleville, brother of the bride, to be best man. Groomsmen were David Sanders, brother of the bride, and Rodney Bevel, both of Belleville.

Some 100 guests gathered at the VFW Hall in Belleville for the reception which followed. The bride's mother chose for the occasion a peach lace floor-length gown while a coral formal gown was the choice of the bridegroom's grandmother. Both were honored with white orchid corsages.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES E. WILSON

The newlyweds honeymooned enroute to their new home at 210-D Croyden in San Antonio, Tex. where the bridegroom is stationed and completing his education at Kelly Air Force Base.

The new Mrs. Wilson graduated in 1981 from Belleville High School and spent a year in the nursing program at Eastern Michigan University.

Blood is needed

The Red Cross needs YOU as well as your family and friends to donate blood immediately! One thousand pints of blood are needed daily and the Red Cross can't provide it without help from the community.

The international organization operates under the philosophy that blood should be made available to all simply because a person needs it. To provide this essential community service, the Red Cross must collect, process and distribute 1,000 pints each day.

You are urged to take part in the blood drive being conducted Aug. 4 from 1 to 7 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church of Belleville, 417 Charles Street.

Please call 699-5801 for an appointment or simply walk in whenever it is convenient for you to do so.

They're engaged

MISS KOBISH

The engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Cynthia Kobish, and Larry Brown are announced by Robert and Penny Manning of 21747 Fensler, Belleville.

A 1982 Belleville High School graduate, Miss Kobish plans to attend Eastern Michigan University as an art major in the fall.

The prospective bridegroom, who lives at 264 Dakota Ave., Ypsilanti, is the son of Robert and Mary Brown of 46490 Judd Rd., Belleville. A 1980 graduate of Belleville High School, he is studying photography at Washtenaw Community College while employed by Olan Mills Portrait Studio in Ann Arbor.

The First United Methodist Church of Belleville will be the setting for the couple's August 7 wedding.

List of activities growing for September Days Seniors

- | | | | | | |
|--|---|--|--|---|--|
| Several more interesting activities have been added to the ever-increasing number of "things-to-do" on the September Days Senior Citizens' calendar. | Beginning Aug. 3 and continuing each Tuesday, Virginia Melcher will teach day-long sewing classes at the Van Buren Senior Center. | On Aug. 14 all interested members will be heading for Tiger Stadium in Detroit to see the Detroit team play Kansas City. | The Polka Festival in Frankenmuth is on the agenda Aug. 16 and on the 25th it will be lakeside dining at the St. Clair Inn for the dinner-out crowd. | Hazel Park Race Track will be the destination Aug. 31 where a buffet dinner will precede the "off-and-running" signal. Seating will be in an enclosed grandstand. | The membership is also reminded that the club library is open the last Tuesday of each month. A large selection of books (at least 100) — all in large face print — are delivered monthly by the Wayne County Library System and are available for the borrowing, says Doris Simester, club librarian. Hours are 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. |

New on the scene

Michelle Renee McKelvey

What a birthday present for a 5-year-old young lady! — her very own baby doll, one that gurgles and coos, cries real tears and actually needs diaper changes.

That's the gift Jennifer McKelvey received July 6 — a baby sister who arrived at Wyandotte General Hospital and weighed eight pounds on delivery.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Richard McKelvey of Romulus, the infant was titled "Michelle Renee." She is also the little sister of Jason, who's 2½ years old, and the granddaughter of the Wilbur Kormoses of Trenton and the Charles McKelveys of Belleville.

The children's mother is the former Linda Kormos.

Love at first sight does exist, according to a Chicago psychoanalyst, but to fall in love "a person must be ready" to meet the right person. An openness to feelings and expectations, a longing to care and be cared for, and a desire to take a chance in a relationship are some of the factors involved.

Special baby

It was not your everyday birthday party on Sunday, July 11. It was something special because the celebration was for Sean Zawol, who has spent his first year of life in Oakwood Hospital's neonatal intensive care unit in the Maternal and Child Health Care Center. Helping Sean, who is on a ventilator, celebrate are Romulus' Linda Grundy, R.N., (left) and his mother, Rebecca Zawol. (Photo by George Booth)

This baby deserves a special birthday

It was not your everyday birthday party. To be sure, there were streamers and balloons swinging from the ceiling and there was no lack of gifts from adoring family members.

But the day had a special significance. For the Sunday, July 11, party was to celebrate the birthday of Sean Zawol, who has spent his first year of life in Oakwood Hospital's neonatal intensive care unit (NICU) in the Maternal and Child Health Care Center.

Sean was born around 10 weeks premature, weight two pounds and 11 ounces, and since birth he has mainly been on a ventilator. Today, he weighs more than 12½ pounds and, while developmentally delayed and suffering from some respiratory problems, he is making progress.

"With babies like Sean, we take one day at a time," said New Boston's Edith A. Merritt, R.N., head nurse, NICU, who noted Sean has spent the longest period of time in NICU of any baby at Oakwood. She said he is responsive to sounds, people and faces, is doing well nutritionally, and "gets angry when we do things he doesn't want done."

The idea for the party stemmed from Sean's three primary care nurses, Linda Grundy, R.N., Dolores Sandrowicz, R.N., and Audrey Dibble, R.N., who attend to him on their respective shifts.

After his parents were contacted for their approval, the plans were made with other hospital departments also participating in the event.

"People often forget the humane aspects of hospital care and his is a very good example of caring which hospital personnel have for a patient. They not only provide medical care but emotional support as well. It's an example of people sharing and caring," said Mrs. Merritt.

The relationships between members of the medical and nursing staffs with their patients is always important. In Sean's case, his primary care nurses have contributed much to the progress he has made.

In citing the "continuity of care," Mrs. Merritt said, "Sean sees the same faces all the time. While other nurses have provided important support, his primary care nurses are special to Sean and he's special to them."

This point is echoed by Sean's mother, Rebecca Zawol, who says Sean is aware when his most familiar faces are not around.

"Everyone has been great. They're like a family to us. A couple of the nurses even call themselves 'aunt' to Sean. I just love everyone of them," said Mrs. Zawol.

For Mrs. Zawol and her husband, Dennis, the party was special in more ways than one. It was the first time that Sean's older brother, Shane, who will be two in October, spent some time with him in the unit.

"Sean was moved to an isolation room so his little brother could be with him," said Mrs. Merritt, who noted while there is open visiting for parents and grandparents, there is no open visiting for siblings inside the unit.

"The party turned out great," said Mrs. Zawol, who has spent several hundred hours at the hospital visiting Sean.

It has been a difficult time for the couple but through this period, Mrs. Zawol said she has been sustained by her family and friends. "Shane is the only thing which keeps me really going," she said, because "I have another baby at home to think about."

The day not only provided the Zawol family with further encouragement but was a reflection of the caring for Sean - a caring which also occurs on a daily basis for all the babies in the unit.

100 golfers seek coveted city crowns

2 defending champs are in the field

Everybody, young and old, apparently is looking forward to this weekend when the 23rd Annual City Championship Golf Tournament will be staged at the beautiful Fellows Creek Golf Course.

At this time, some 100 amateur male golfers, including a pair of defending champs, will be ready to take 6,210 yard, par 72 golf layout in Canton Township.

The golfers will be playing for city titles and the right to qualify for the Michigan Recreation and Parks Association's state finals which will be held later this year.

Back to defend his title is Canton Township's Matt Wiley who shot a 142 total for 32 holes to capture his first Western Wayne Tournament a year ago. Wiley came back for a 5-under par 66 in the finals after shooting a first round 76 to beat Wayne's Dab Schewe for the medalist honors.

However, this year the young golfer will have to contend with another defending champ, Paul Wiekierak who managed to win the 1980 title after a rain-delayed tournament that nearly was flooded out.

It will also be the first time that golfers from Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Garden City and Canton will be looking at their peers from Romulus. Romulus amateurs have been invited into the tournament and they have accepted the challenge.

"I really believe this will be one of, if not the finest tournament we have ever staged," said Bill Hawley, tournament manager. "Looking over the list of entries, I know these golfers have the experience to make this year's tourney a close one."

The golfers will be playing 18-holes on Saturday, then return for the final 18 on Sunday. The top five golfers in each of the championship flights will advance to the state. They also will be awarded trophies. In case of a tie for a trophy berth, golfers will have to settle their differences by a "sudden death" playoff.

There is a special trophy for the low scorer of the entire field (medalist). There is also an Anderson Memorial Trophy which is awarded to the golfer who finishes atop of the field from Wayne. The trophy is in memory of Patrolman Anderson, the first Wayne police officer to lose his life in the line of duty.

Because of the early Associated Newspapers' deadline, some names may not appear in the following Tee Off Pairings. Please contact Tom Mooradian, Associated Newspapers, at 729-4000, for tee off times. Or telephone Fellows Creek.

Westland battles for softball titles

There's no catching Bray's in Westland Parks and Recreation's Men's Class B - Blue Division softball.

Pounding Leo Calhoun 20-8, the undefeated Bray's easily earned its 10 straight victory and widened its lead to three games over the fading Lion & Sword ball club. The Lions dropped a keygame to Master Photo.

Bray's scored in all six innings, piling up 22 hits off of loser Bob Allen who gave up a pair of round-trippers to Bruce Rize whose three hits counted for four runs batted in. Bruce's brother, Ted, also had an excellent night at the plate as he knocked in three runs with three singles.

Keith Trudell also homered and doubled off of Allen who was tagged for three hits by Rich Lebert.

Ted Rize was the winning pitcher, but Leo's got to him for 14 hits, three of them by Skip Walker. Bruce Whitehead checked in with three singles while Tom Hendzell singled and doubled and Mike Hartzell connected for two singles.

Lion & Sword didn't look like a second place team when it clashed with Master Photo which humiliated their rivals 21-2. Scoring 14 times in the second inning, Master's had sealed up the victory in that inning.

Winning pitcher Don Staples was stingy on the hits and the Lions Luoma. Staples helped his cause with three singles and a triple which counted for three RBIs, and John Fargo laced five singles. Don Derhl and Jim Baigrie each had two hits.

Although they had one hit more than the Westland Stars, the Pour Devils found themselves on the shortend of a 4-3 verdict in the only other Blue Division game last week.

The Stars startled their rivals with a last of the seventh 4-run rally to overcome the deficit and post their third win of the season. The Pour Devils' record dipped to 4-5 on the season.

John Buford, Larry Williams, Bob Williams and Gary Asher each had two hits off of winning pitcher Kurt Kasten. Loser Bob Williams had a shutout for six innings before the Stars struck for those crucial four runs.

Over in the Class C Green Division, Fiesta Lanes and Hunter-Wayne Party Store continue to wage a dogfight for first place. Fiesta is on top with a 7-1 record, only a half-game up on the 7-2 Hunter's.

The Elite went over the .500 mark for the first time this season as they humbled SNAFU, 17-4 thanks to a 20-hit assault led by Brad Haywood who blasted an over-the-fence homer and also checked in with three hits and three RBIs. Teammates Steve Robinson, Todd Lancaster and Mark Igo each had three hits.

Winning pitcher Bill Wilson served up a triple to Bob Getchell and a two-run double to Denny Pepler.

Steve Meyer tossed a six-hitter as Tedrick Photo shut out S.A.L.E. Advertising 4-0. Meyer had his problems with Bob Thomas, who accounted for two of those six S.A.L.E. hits.

Chuck Pickering connected for two hits, and Greg O'Neil belted a run-scoring double while Dave Gioia and Tom Smith each got key hits off of loser, Joe Beiss.

In the only other "C" Green game, Hunter erupted for eight runs in the second inning to subdue Traver Roofing 13-0. Rick Knurek drilled a triple and single and drove in four runs, while O'Neil had three triples and three RBIs and Pat Kaltenback latched on to a single and triple off of loser Larry Coffin in an abbreviated game due to the "mercy rule."

Winner Dave Gillies gave up three singles - one each to Don Mil-

They're Angels

Posting an over-all 16-4 won-lost record, the Angels, coached by Joe Mortz and Ron Murawski, captured the Romulus South Little League baseball championship this season. The championship line-up included Rusty Terry (seated from row, from left), Jeff

Wayne, Romulus All-Stars split in girls' softball

Although the Romulus Minors managed to get their margin of revenge over Wayne's Midi-League All-Stars, in the senior circuit, Wayne continued to dominate the annual Wayne vs. Romulus Girls' All-Star Game.

Mary Silvey and Kelly Stewart combined on a five-hit pitching performance as Romulus won a 10-2 decision in the midleague contest, but Wayne came back and handed their visitors a 10-3 setback in the nightcap.

Representing Wayne's Midi-League were Bonnie Husson, Tracy Saffian, Holly Killan, Bobbie Wickler - all from the Bluejays; Tracie Piscopink, Missy Foster and Connie Dashed - from the Curve Catchers; Debra Cantrel and Amy Dietespiff - from the Funky Fielders; Kristin Beeny and Lisa Carter - Wayne Tigers. Also in the Wayne line-up were Kim Akans and Chris Sanchez (Superstars); Tara Scott, Kim Pobur and Jennifer Mantooth (Mighty Mites); Nannette Williams and Tina Dawson of the Streaks and Lynn Boelter and Nicole Nikolich of the Sluggers.

Romulus' Minors' lineup included: Melissa Shellenbargo and Sherri Almarco of the Angels; Angela Fronczak and Kelly Stewart of the Stallions; Mary Silvey and Marue Atherton of the Electros. Also in the lineup were Jill Centek, Kim Lyles and Cathy Mann (Blue Angels); Lisa Elliott and Irene Dubous of the Royals and Sherry Sloan and Kelly Ocholik of the Mustangs.

Wayne Maxi-League All-Stars were drafted from five teams including the Stingers - Caryl Wasik, Karen Winberg, Terri Malta and Karen Bratcher; from the Roadrunners - Karen Humpries, Krista Hayward, Cheryl Bechtol and Julie Mabelitini; from the Spirits - Pat Sanders, Marnette Lanthier and Sandy Siefert; from the Bat Blasters - Melissa Prvo, Colleen Griffin, Debbie Castledini, Michelle Griffin; from the Honeybees - Brenda McArthur, Kim Knight, Tracie Piscopink and Kerry Lee.

Romulus' Senior All-Stars were represented by Tina Gossett Kris Bair, Dawn Proost and Michelle Plonka (Blue Streakers); Kellie Knight, DeeDee Pochmara, Monica Block, Terry Eberline and Laura Wiltsie - Custom Cruisers; and also by Amy Hoth, Lisa Hoth, Jessie Stokley, Michelle Grizzle and April Bowen, all of the Bad Company.

Westland has 'A' perfect softball team

Binny's chalks up 10 straight victories

With the help of Maureen Schwann's pitching, league-leading Binny's Restaurant came one victory closer to the Westland Parks and Recreation Class A Women's Softball championship.

Schwann blanked Apartment Services 12-0 as Binny's chalked up its 10th consecutive victory of the season. They're now three-games up on second place Chuck's A-Plus Party Store and are closing fast on the championship.

Schwann gave up a triple to Chris

Nadolski and scattered a pair of harmless singles to Pam Parien and Sharon Vreeland.

In the meantime, losing pitcher Shelly Arner had her problems with slugger Kim Schwatz who laced a triple and a single for four runs batted in.

Cindy Stapelton and Sharon Winklee each had two hits for the winners.

In other Class A games, Chuck's bounced back to beat Bo & Al's Collision 9-2 for their seventh win of the year. Dawn Boyd chipped in three singles, while Ann Kolnity had a single and double for the winners. Losing hurler Lori Eby also gave up a run-scoring single to Eileen O'Brien.

Winner Beth Tracy served up a pair of hits to Eby and also delivered a pair of run-scoring hits to Lynda Uliniski and Lisa Pepler.

Over in Class B action, powerhouse J & D Auto continues to set the pace with a tarnished 7-1 record. The runner-up slot is crowded by three 4-5 teams including Rocco's, Varsity Club, and Westland Lock & Key.

Rocco's managed to get by Varsity Club 4-3 as the winners came up with the decisive run in the bottom of the seventh inning. Winning pitcher Tammy Nauno was tagged for a run-scoring triple by Kathy Goode while Jo Rayburn and Ann Goll each had two hits.

Kathy Deluca homered off of loser, June Evans, who also served up two hits each to Jan Crawford and Lou Ann Churches.

Rocco's also earned an impressive 7-3 victory over Westworld's ball club as winning hurler Denise Canales found Sue Barbalas's bat "hot." She collected three hits, while Gail Cooper checked in with two singles and Kelly Schultz sliced a single and a double.

Rocco's received a pair of decisive hits from the Hughes - Pat and Dawn who combined for five hits. One of Pat's hits went for a two-run double.

Bob Poet got credit for the win, getting some hitting help from Ron Huggins and Pete Malaniak. Poet helped his cause with a pair of singles and two RBIs.

Bill Elstone paced the losers with three hits, while teammates Dave Terry and Joe Purdoo each had two hits. Wayne Miller took the loss.

Hueblin Inc. drilled 16 hits, including roundtrippers by Steve Stec, Dennis Hatfield, and Tom Rhode to turn back United Brass, 10-6. Stec finished up with three hits and two RBIs off of loser Keith McArthur who also have up three hits and three runs batted in to Rhode.

Don Lalonde was the winner and he also was tagged for the long ball by John Gross who also had a single. Rick Eddings and McArthur had two hits each.

7-in-row for 'A' leader

Showdowns loom in Romulus softball

While league-leading Bingamen Agency rested and remained untouched after seven games, second place G.O.C. stayed in the chase for the Romulus Men's Open League Softball Championship with a lopsided 19-5 victory over ailing Super Y Market.

With G.O.C. pounding out 25 hits and erupting for six runs in the sixth and adding seven more in the seventh, the winners remained one-game behind Bingamen, which is 7-0 on the year.

George Schultz hammered three doubles and a single and also collected three runs batted in for G.O.C., and Tom Gapa and Eddie Skees had three and two hits respectively off of loser Don LaLonde.

Winning hurler John Soherroy gave up 12 safeties, three of which went to Don James. Pete Stroumire laced a single and triple while LaLonde had two singles.

In other Class A Open action, Dranke's Lounge didn't have to sweat for its sixth win in eighth starts as winless Federal Mogul failed to muster enough players at game time and forfeited.

But Terry's Lounge came back to edge the Romulus Jaycees 11-7 thanks to a late inning rally that included three runs in the sixth and two more in the final stanza. Larry Hale and Mel Allen each checked in with two hits, while Mike DeLarosa had three, including a double.

Winning pitcher Robbie Roscoe scattered seven hits, giving up a pair to Roy Hollis and a two-run double to Terry Hoffman. Hoffman was charged with the loss.

In the meantime, Romulus City Drugs escaped a pair of close calls to widen the gap between it and the field in Class A. The league-leader has a 14-1 win-loss ratio, while the (See CLASS A Page C-3)

Is Puffer Red the best?

If there is a finer women's Class A Romulus softball team than Puffer Red Records it hasn't not emerged this season.

The league-leading club pounded Morgan's Collision 11-2 to remain atop of the field with a 11-3 record. Only Total Petroleum has a shot at Puffer's as the campaign nears the stretch.

Pitcher Sandy Holliday tossed a three-hitter and missed a rare shut-out when Morgan's struck for two runs in the last inning thanks to Sherie Lewis, Rhonda Johnson, and Janine Eberline's bats.

Debbie Mooman, charged with the loss, gave up 14 hits including homers to Theresa Gibson, Thera Gray and Rhonda Harris. Ms. Gray also collected two singles and made her three hits count for three RBIs.

In the meantime, Total Petroleum remained in the title picture with a 7-1 victory over third place Proressive Club. Diana Kampsen missed posting a no-hitter when she gave up a single to Sharon Dugan.

Losing hurler Audrey Hadyniak was tagged for eight hits, including three by Sherry Hale. Chris Pinter and Karen Webb split four hits — two singles and two doubles — between them.

Over in the Sunday Men's League, NAPA stayed perfect with a 19-5 victory over Solar Machine. It was NAPA's seventh consecutive victory in as many outings.

George Sowtag's bat helped pitcher Carl Rumschlag to victory as he knocked in five runs with a homer, triple and single. Mates Tom Montgomery and Mike Britz checked in with three and two safeties off of loser Rick Floyd who also collected two hits.

Walt Blanchard, with a single and double, and Frank Kerr, who had a pair of singles, sparked Solar's hitting machine.

In other Sunday games, Federal Mogul won its fifth decision in seven starts at the expense of the Human Beings, 14-10. Federal's amassed 27 hits and exploded for eight runs in the first inning of loser John Hiller. Hiller gave up three hits, including three RBIs to Rich Way. Les Cain and Dennis Wessells each had a single and double.

ler, Norm Zigler and Ed Traver.

Jake's and Flooring Unlimited managed to survive close games to remain deadlocked at the top of the Men's "B" Red Division standings. Both sport 10-1 records.

Jake's held off an upset minded Silverman's 11-9 thanks to Larry Scheffler who drilled three homers and batted on three runs for the winners. Losing pitcher Larry McConnell also was dealt to setback by Corky Hayes, John Irwon and Chapie Reynolds who each had two hits.

Silverman's managed to keep the pressure on the league co-leader thanks to Brian Parrish's bat which produced four singles. Dave Arvo and John Hughes each collected two hits off of winning hurler, Corky Hayes.

Flooring Unlimited also stayed in the race with a narrow 5-4 victory over Bob's Hide-A-Way. Winning pitcher Mike Hodges came in to stop the fire as Tom Wright gave up four runs in the third as Randy Discher, who had a single and double, Cliff Williamson, who checked in with a pair of hits, and Dale Woolford, who had a run-scoring triple played key roles in this thriller.

Woolford, the loser delivered a pair of hits to Steve Bradke, Tom Wright and Hodges.

In other games, Rizzo's dropped a 13-12 decision to Newburgh Station, but came back to edge Great Lakes 12-11.

Seek teams for softball invitational

There is a Wed., July 28 deadline for teams wishing to compete in a Class "C" Westland Invitational Softball Tournament. The tournament will be staged on Sat., July 31 to Sun., Aug. 1.

There is a $100 entry fee which includes the price tag for the softballs and umpires' fees.

Tiger in the Siena Heights

Dave Stewart (standing second from left) of Belleville High School, has recently signed to wrestle with the Siena Heights College "Saints." At Belleville, Stewart helped the Tigers become one of the powers in the Suburban 8 Conference and was instrumental in bringing the conference championship to Belleville.

Red Wings to play in benefit softball

There'll be plenty of celebrities and action when the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department hosts its Fourth Annual Softball Day beginning at noon on Sat., July 31, at Elmer Johnson Park.

The highlight of the star-studded event will be a doubleheader between the Detroit Sports Broadcasters Association and the Detroit Red Wing Hockey Club.

Other games will feature Romulus Women All-Stars vs. Wayne Women All-Stars. There is also a "grudge match" between the City of Romulus employees and the Romulus Chamber of Commerce.

Proceeds will go to the Romulus Umpires Association for the purpose of purchasing a Public Announcement system for the park and, also, monies will be donated to the Detroit Sports Broadcasters Scholarship Fund.

For further information, please contact the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department at 941-0666, extension 254.

Where's those turkeys?

Attractive Robin Froman of Belleville is sharpening up her shooting eye for the annual "Turkey Shoot and Barbecue" to be held at 10 a.m., Sun., Aug. 1 at the Tom Freeman Country Club, 28321 Sumpter Road in New Boston. The affair is sponsored by the Motor City Sportsmen's Association. There will be trapshooting in various classes — beginners and advanced. Free instructions will also be available to persons who desire to learn the safe way to shoot. Cash prizes and turkeys will be awarded to the best shooters. The all-day picnic will feature games for the kids as well as pony rides and hay rides. This will be a family affair. Proceeds from the turkey shoot will be donated to the Boy Scouts of America. The country club is located in New Boston and these coming from the Metropolitan Detroit area may take I-94 west and turn at Belleville Road; take Belleville Road to Sumpter Road and continue to 23821 Sumpter Road.

Karate class offered

The Downriver YMCA's outreach site in Romulus will be starting a beginning Karate class on Thursday, July 22. The class will meet on Tuesday and Thursday at 7 p.m. and will take place at the Human Service Center on 19101 Inkster Rd. (just south of Sibley).

The basic self-defense class will be geared for adults and youths with little or no karate experience. Those interested in registering for the class may do so at the first class. The fees for the 9-week class is $30 per student. No YMCA membership is required.

For more information contact the Downriver Family YMCA at 281-2600.

Showdowns loom in Class A

second place team, Captain Nemo, lags behind with an 8-4 record.

Romulus City Drugs came up with two decisive runs in the bottom of the sixth to edge Bilal's Barber Shop, 5-4. Bilal's blew 4-0 lead when City Drugs rallied for three runs in the fourth. Losing hurler John Haley and Jay Barton, the winner, served up eight hits apiece, but Barton delivered a three-run homer to Danny Goodwin.

Danny Lee collected three hits and Haley doubled to aid his cause.

Johnny Haggler latched on to a pair of doubles and a single, while Tom McCloskey and Larry Chesno each had run-producing hits for the winners.

A three-run seventh inning surge lifted City Drugs past Bilal's in an earlier showdown and Barton again received credit for the victory. He was tagged for 11 hits, including a roundtripper by Erving Gibson. Dan Lee and Darnell Hearst each had a pair of run-scoring safeties.

Kevin Gibson had his problems with Jim Whaley who homered and singled for the winners. Mike Gullins and Haggler turned in with three and two hits respectively.

City Drugs had no problems with last place and winless Golden Eagle Bar which was subdued by the pacesetters 17-0 as Mike Collins twirled a two-hitter. Tom Caudill and Bill Napier accounted for all of the loser's hits.

Ron Buckley homered and singled, while Haggler drilled three hits, including a pair of doubles and Earl Champagne had a single and double for the winners. Haggler, Buckley and Champagne also each had two RBIs.

In other Class A games, Capt. Nemos padded its over-all record to 8-4 at the expense of Angies Bar. Knocking out 20 hits, Nemo's erupted for eight runs in the top of the seventh to stash the victory away.

Jamie Hinajosa who had five RBIs smacked a circuit clout and also tripled and had three singles, while teammate Ron Sumenick belted a roundtripper, two singles and also had two runs batted in Steve Sheridan chipped in four singles.

Winning pitcher Tom Block also was hit hard as Al Jose blasted three hits, including a homer and had three RBIs. Bobby Reed chipped in three singles and Greg Lewis had a single and double. Rick Fontaine was charged with the loss.

In one of the better defensive duels of the week, Demyan Antique emerged atop of a 4-1 count with Lower Huron S & A Chemicals. Close all the way, Demyan managed to get on the scoreboard with two runs in the fourth and in the bottom of that inning, Lower Huron scored its lonely run. Demyan added two more tallies in the top of the seventh.

Scott Knight, the winning pitcher, gave up 10 hits, including a pair of doubles to Mike Nielson and three hits, including a double to Mark Bratcher.

Paul Debuyscher, the losing hurler, was tagged for three hits by Lonnie Fater. Mates Tom Maveal and Bob Chickowski each stroked run-scoring hits.

Demyan's also had a close one with Bilal's but even a 7-run seventh didn't save them as Bilal's broke a 13-all deadlock with a bottom-of-the-seventh run. Chris Syer, who held Bilal's to 14 hits, five less than his team's total, was rocked by homers from Dan Godwin, Melvin Allen and Eric Talley who played prominently in the victory.

Gibson, the winner, gave up four hits, including a double, to Fater. Steve Demyan and Ernie Henson split four hits between them.

Huron Chemical had little mercy for pitcher Terry Hoffman as they tagged his for 16 hits on route to a 20-5 victory over Angie's. Winner Debuyscher, who served up six hits, collected three singles to aid his cause. John Powers had a single and double, while Mike Lawicki laced four safeties, including a double and drove in two runs.

Hoffman wasted three hits and Rick Prestia wacked a homer and wound up with four RBIs. Bobby Reed accounted for three singles.

In the only other Class A game, Demyan held off Huron's 14-11 as Fater drilled four hits, including a couple of doubles and drove in four runs. Cichowski had a single and double and Maveal got to loser, Debuyscher for two singles.

Scott Knight had his problems with Bratcher who got aboard three times on a double and a pair of singles. John Powers also connected for three hits and Lawicki finished the game with two.

Van Buren to host soccer clinic

Adults interested in coaching youth soccer will have a rare opportunity to partake in a coaching clinic given by Wayne Pirmann.

Pirmann is head coach of the Michigan Soccer Association and has an extensive soccer background.

This clinic, sponsored by Van Buren Township Parks & Recreation Soccer Association, will be held on Saturday, August 7th behind Tyler Elementary School from 9 a.m. - 6 p.m.

Participants of this clinic will receive an "F" level coaching license, a good understanding of the soccer game and, best of all, the tools and ability to organize and run a great practice for youth soccer players.

"I was extremely impressed with Wayne Pirmann's coaching clinic last year," explains Mark Rairick, Director of Van Buren Township Parks & Recreation Department, "and strongly encourage interested adults to come to the Recreation Department and register for this educational experience."

Besides being a soccer player himself, Wayne Pirmann has coached soccer teams on the high school, college (Oakland) and professional (Tampa Bay Rowdies of the NASL) level.

Register for this soccer coaches clinic at Van Buren Township Hall in the Recreation Department. Cost is only $10 and for more information, please call 699-2001.

Van Buren to hold tennis tourney
